We flow into the school and bring the morning
sleep and rain and slam
it in our lockers.
Then the doors swing
closed behind us and we are in.

in to learn, in to be learned about from without, in to learn about the out.

A unique combination of people, a once-in-a-life- time fusion, a never-to- be-repeated accident exploded
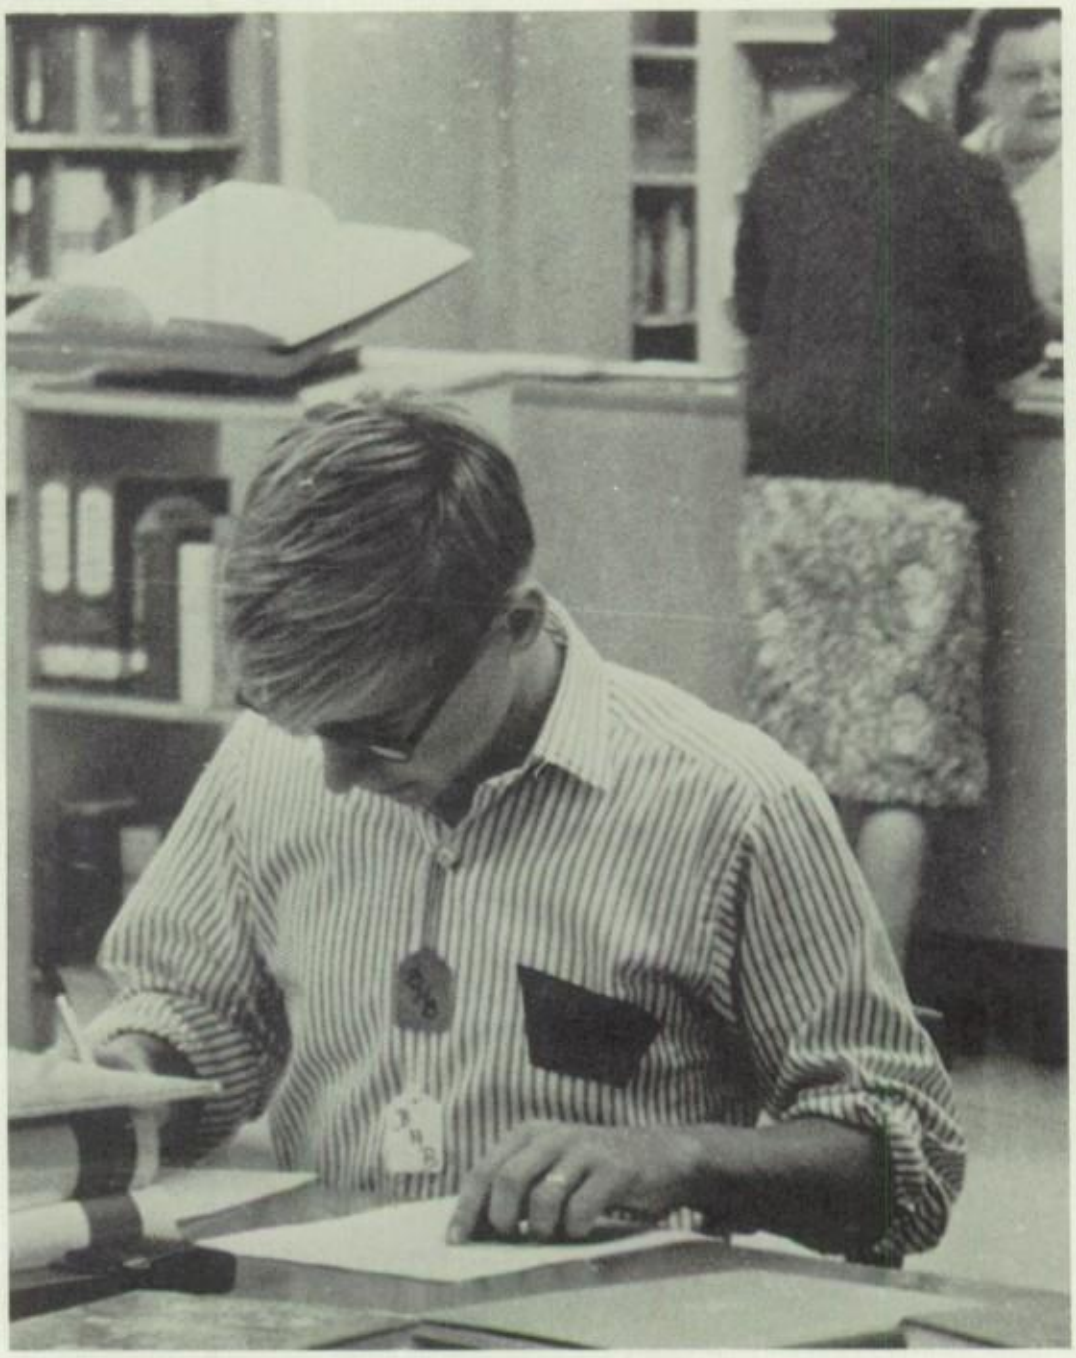
within Shaker



but influenced by everything and anything outside Shaker, from bus to symphony conductors, from Kandinsky to Casanova, from Batman to Mr. Clean.

Inside Shaker we can become almost-lost in the labyrinth of halls and rooms, but we can always find a near-by door into the outside, where the halls are not so crowded, where the people are not all students, where the knowledge is not only scholastic.

And then one day the doors swing open again and we are completely outside Shaker; but our being inside has left
Shaker inside us.

Student life
is part of our total life
as people.
Inside Shaker
we are student-people
before we are doctor-people or poet-people or people-people.

Lonely silence—Bill Taylor after the Heights game.

The school leaders . . .

Shaker Is Every Face,

Inside Shaker are gray locker-lined halls jammed with students between classes . . . and stairs designated up and down designed specifically to baffle sophomores . . . and classrooms with teachers and students . . . and an office with the formidable face of Mr. Meshenberg. On the surface Shaker is the same: the seniors, waiting for the letters from Ohio University or Princeton, want out; the juniors are searching for the right college, Harvard or Stanford; and the sophomores are learning to adjust to a new world where sophomore boys soon find out they must compete with upperclass MEN for the fresh sophomore girls. Dr. Stanavage is worrying about the Shaker image and Mr. Senft is wondering how many students will be accepted to Yale. Mr. Bristol is teaching differential calculus as rapidly as ever; Mr. Burnett is still setting new records with the number of quizzes given in one day; Mr. Szwaja continues to vividly re-enact the Battle of Bunker Hill. An old class leaves, a new class joins. Everything appears unchanged.

Yet a change has occured, though not obvious. The individual is new, not old. Different students bring new faces, new ideas, new idiosyncrasies, new leadership. Under the influence of these personalities, Shaker is not the Shaker of last year—or the year before. It is a new Shaker: more spirit, more people, more progress, more special.

Crowded Clamor—Invading junior high boys having a blast.

Striving for Scholarship Students Study . . .

Study fills up a student's evening. The library, where pleasure is often combined with work, bustles with people. But when the pressure is on, the lonely vigil of serious study begins. These quiet moments of study foretell the role we are preparing to play outside Shaker.

Facing high school with anticipation, sophomores soon adjust to giving up Saturdays for biology insect collection. Juniors become entangled with college selections and a myriad of aptitude tests. After college acceptances, seniors hope to be on easy street, looking only to the future.

Creative Genius at Its Best

The Gristmill staff will never forget those late Friday night deadlines nor will the memory of frantic rushes to complete the galleys fade in the minds of the Shakerite editors. The athletes toiled grueling hours daily to merit new laurels for Shaker. Band and orchestra practiced many periods to perform at football games or to offer cultural entertainment. Student government gave participants a chance to exercise democracy in action.

We all faced the same choices, whether to get involved in inside activities, and whether to reach further to the outside for enlightment. For some students studies were the focus of life twenty-four hours a day; others resigned themselves to social pursuits; and still other became entangled in school activities. Grade points sometimes slip, time is precious, and life frustrating, but few who participate ever regret the experience.

A Time for Smiles, Friends, and Romance

Sometime during a hectic day, every Shaker student pauses to laugh, to giggle, to smile—to brighten someone's day. No matter how busy, we always find time for friends, whether it is before class or at lunch, during the week or on weekends. Although the school's primary function is education of the mind, our emotional being requires time to mature before facing society outside.

Shaker Enjoys First

Highlighting Shaker's social events was our first annual Homecoming, sponsored by Social Council. Sparking weekend activities was the Junior Class Skit, featuring Joe Cooley from Podunk U. Although Shaker rooters suffered a disappointing loss Saturday afternoon to last-place Brush, the introduction of the luscious queen candidates, Nancy Bolz, Debby Curtis, Marilyn Fargo, Pam Weaver, and Nancy Weckesser offered delightful entertainment at halftime. The climax of the evening dance was the crowning of Nancy Bolz as Homecoming Queen 1965. A romantic mood was set by Lou Elgart, the king of the swing.

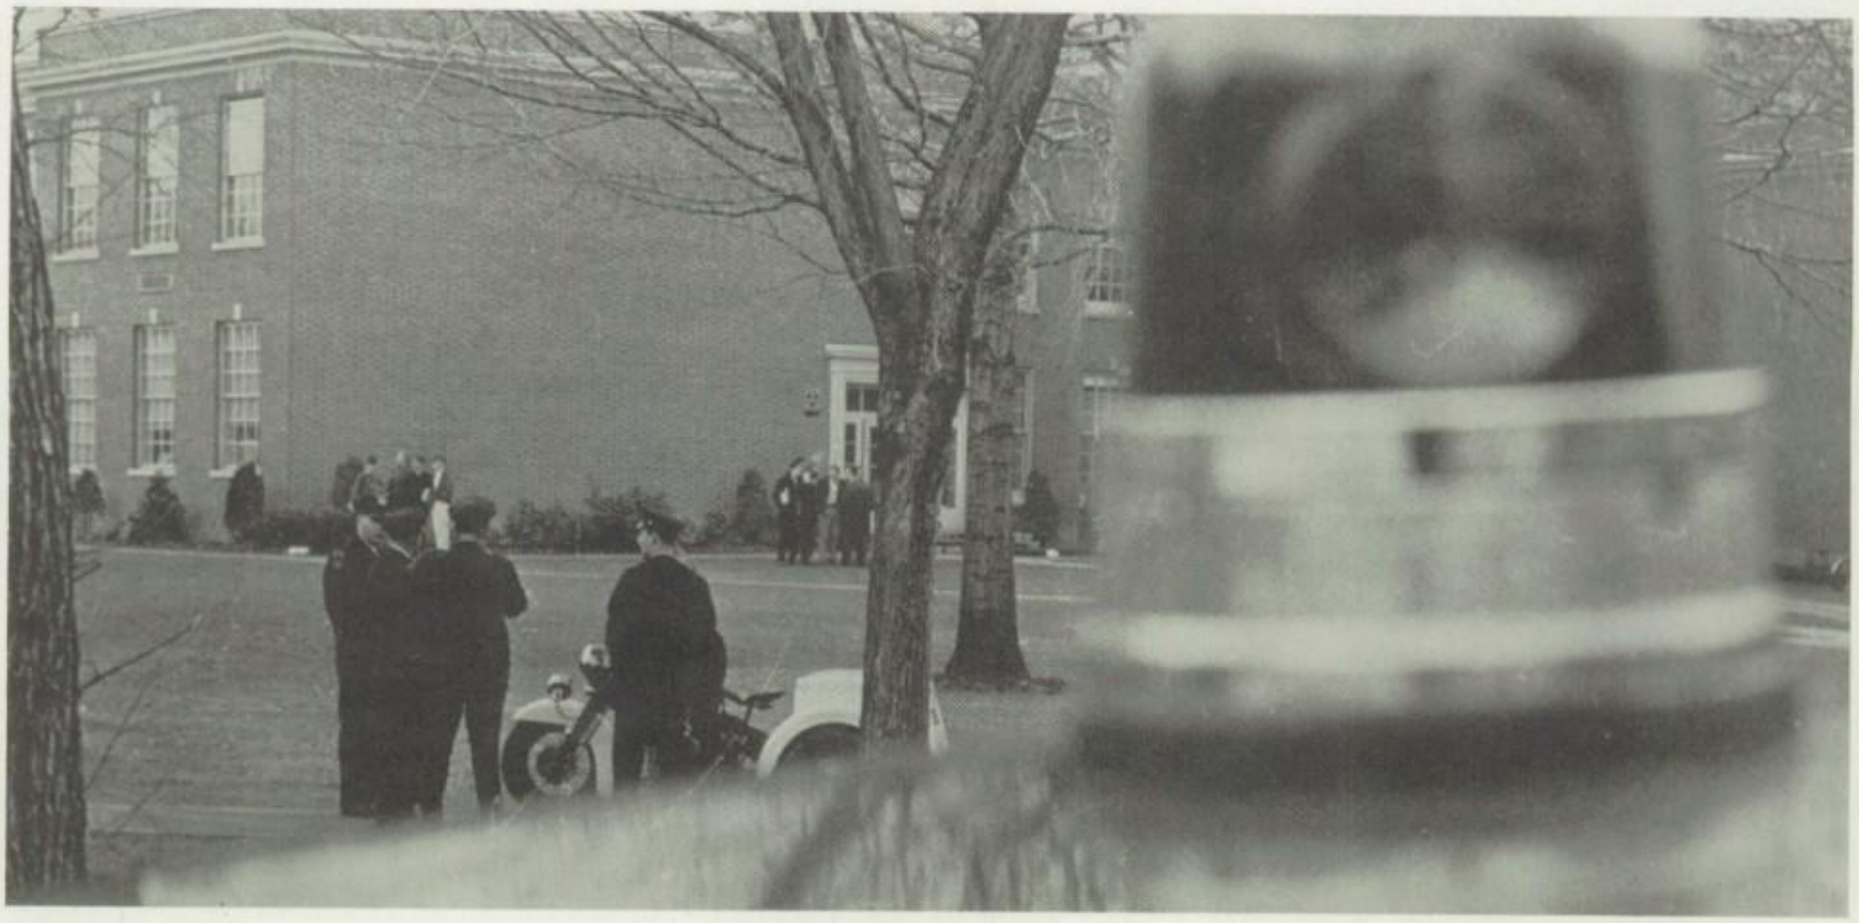
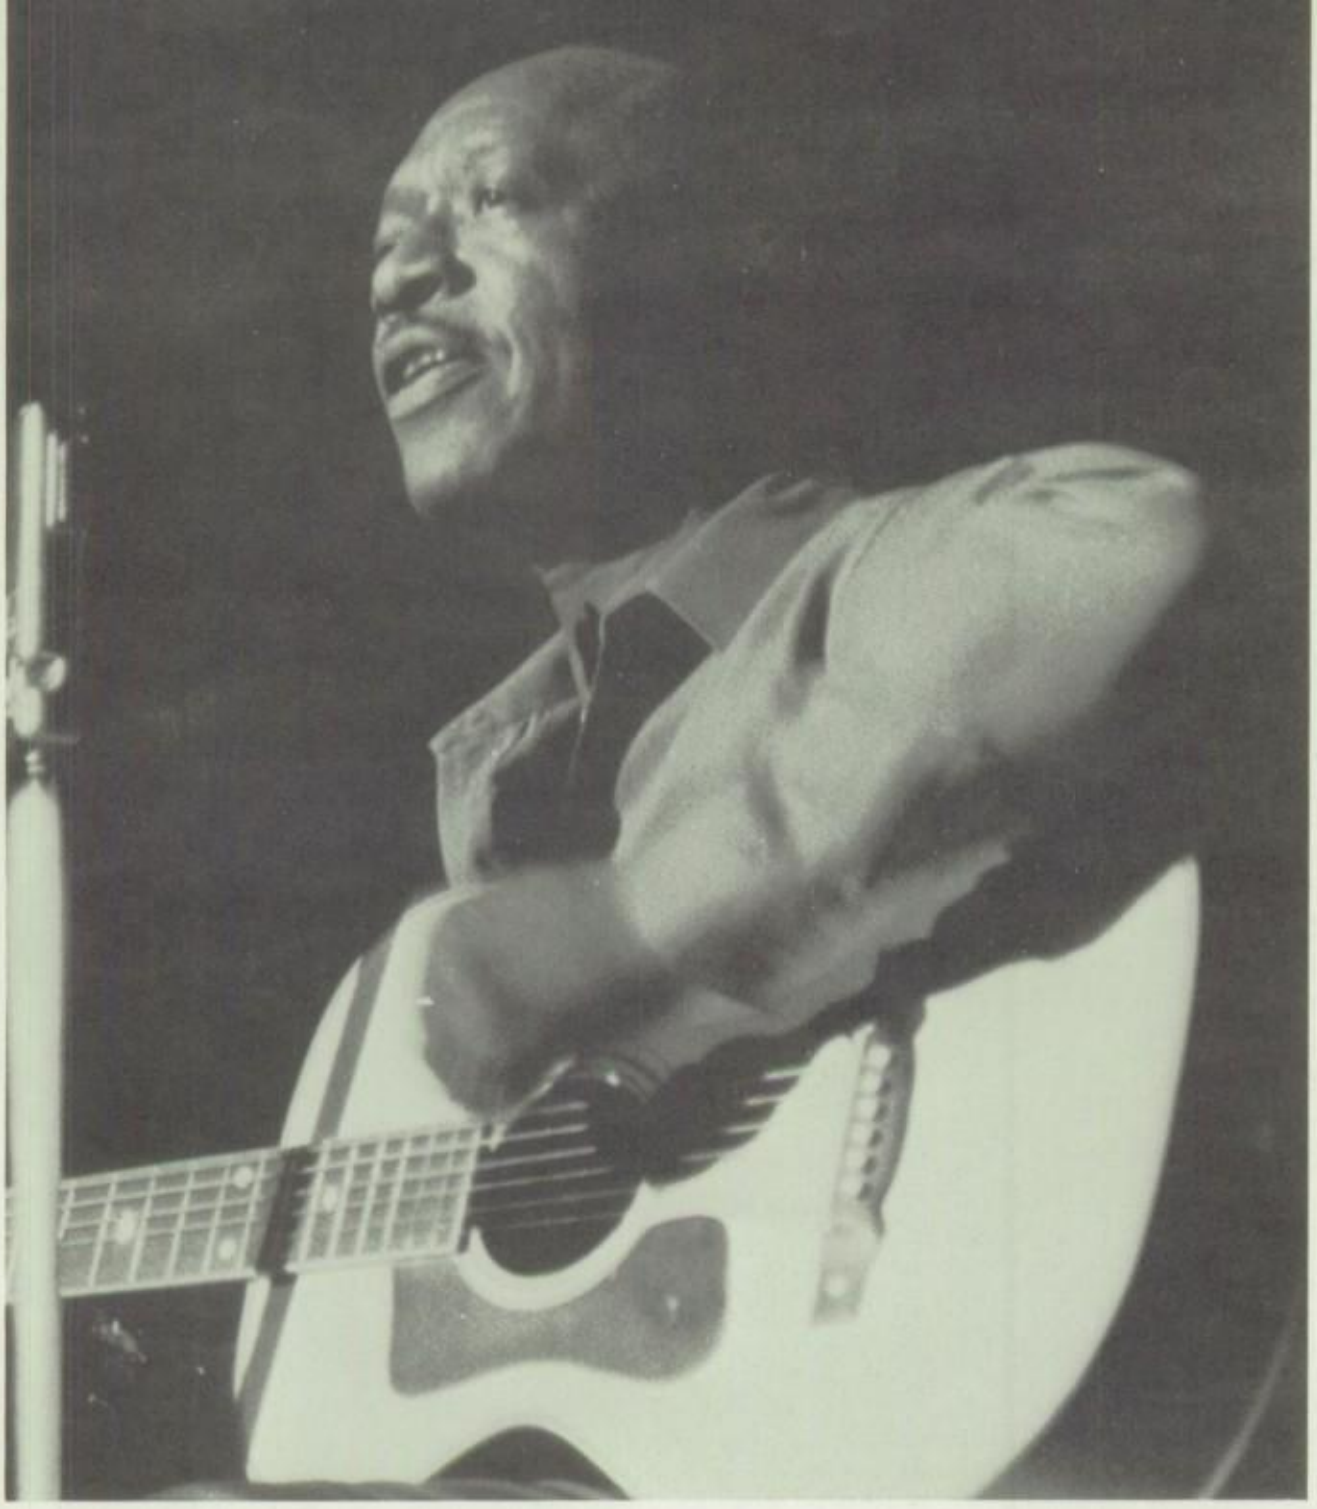
"In" Incidents Inside Shaker Characterize Camp Campus

No other year saw the jerk, the British bob, Polack jokes, and Batman "In." No student will forget the ecstasy of capturing the State Championship in baseball or the elation of winning our first L.E.L. Basketball championship. Who was not interested in the filming of a coke commercial at Shaker with our Miss Olds? Or Mitch Dubick forgetting the lines of "I Remember It Well?"

This fall the radical fringe of the senior class acted upon a feeling of discontent by calling a demonstration. Many were dissatisfied with regulations and the selection of "The Old Fogies" after the students had voted for a big beat band, "The Disciples." It never came off, as police outnumbered the demonstrators. One misguided youth called all of the mass media, blowing this minor incident out of proportion.





JOSH WHITE.

Granny specs—Barb Dery.

Through the exciting music of Josh White, Shaker and Heights students learned the values of peaceful coexistence as the two schools' student councils combined forces and brought the name singer to the Heights High Auditorium. White's blues beat, which pulsated through his most famous songs, "Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out," "Dupree and Betty," and "Free and Equal Blues," thrilled the combined audiences. Shaker and Heights will remember the concert as an exciting musical venture and proof that the rivalry between the schools can be constructive and beneficial.

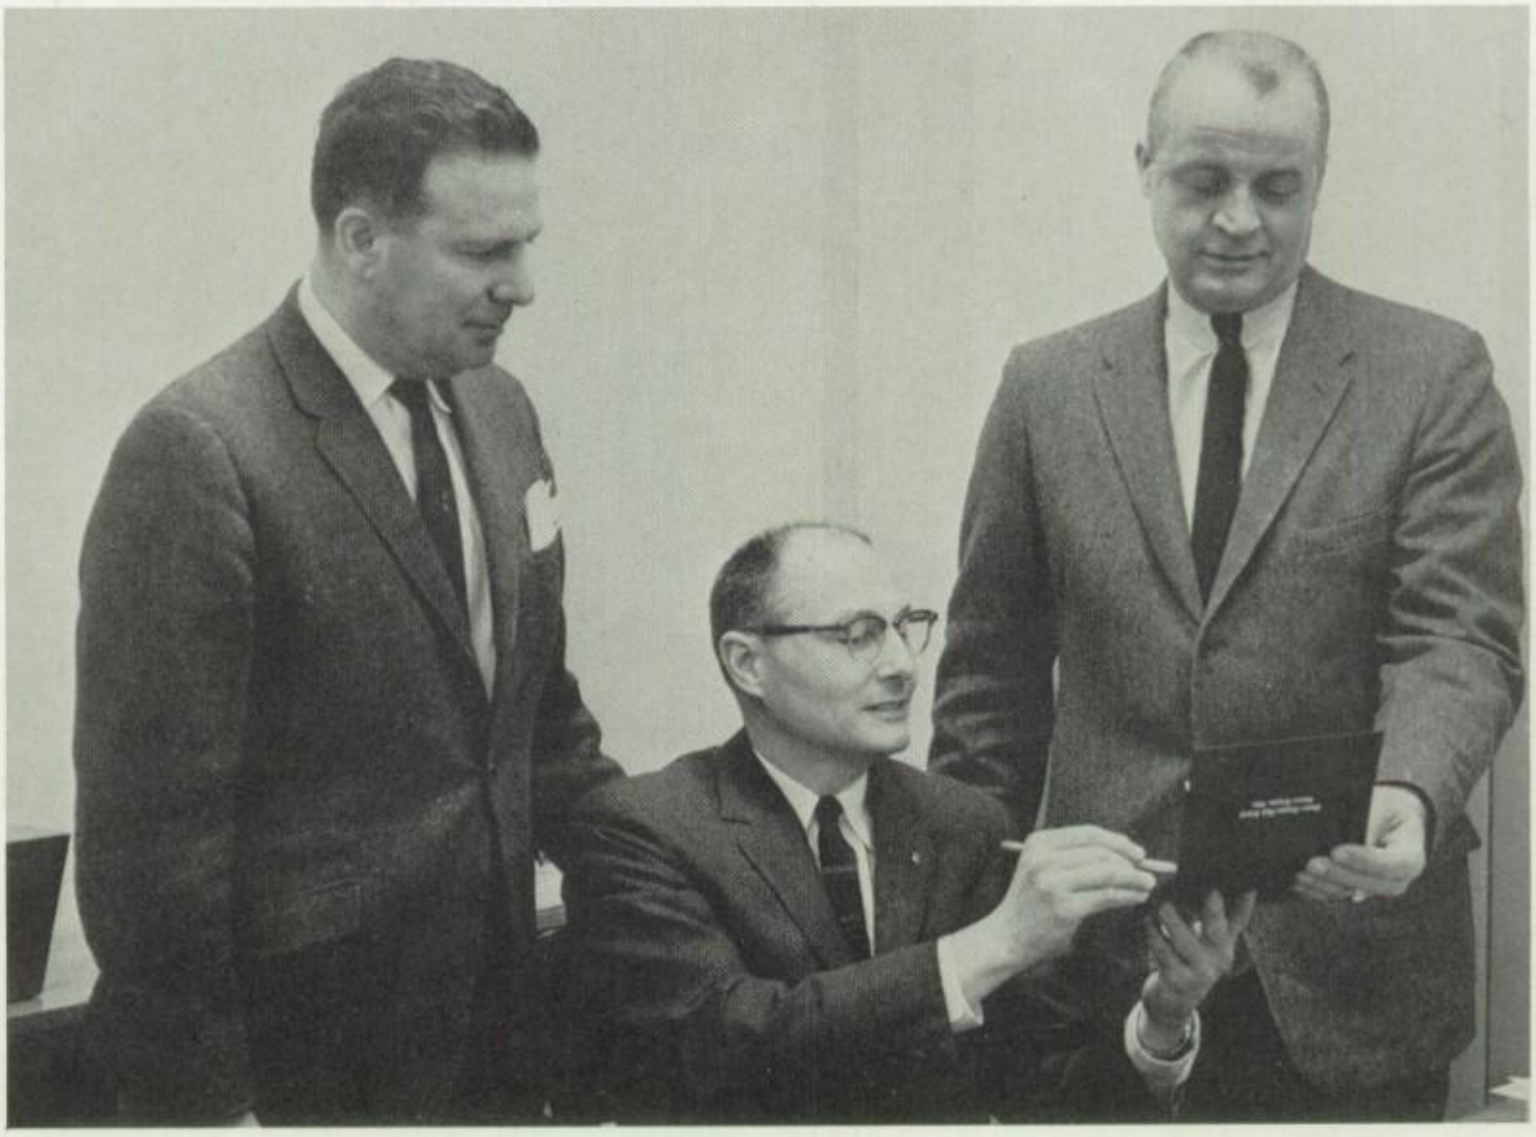
An Able Administration —



Assistant Principals: Martin W. Meshenberg, Kenneth R. Caldwell, Albert T. Senft.

School Board Members: Dr. John H. Lawson, Mr. Oliver Emerson, Mr. Robert Rawson, Mr. Alan S. Geismer, Mrs. Sally Griswold, Mr. Herbert Hansel.

Nerve Center of a School

"Dr. Stanavage: 'If I may say a few words . . .' "

A new face appeared in Shaker this year, and along with Dr. John H. Lawson, superintendent, came many new ideas. This year was a year of revision for Shaker, a year in which we "looked back, in order to be able to look forward more successfully." The entire faculty and administration were involved in a general school evaluation program in which all aspects of the school were explored. Yawningly, but faithfully, over two hundred Shakerites arrived at 7:40 each morning for the "early bird" classes, an innovation at Shaker in 1966. The title of Department Chairman was changed to Department Head, and the job itself involved more administrative responsibilities.

Shaker has always attempted to establish successful communication between administration, faculty, and students. This year Dr. Stanavage published an occasional bulletin to the faculty, aptly entitled "High Dialogue." Several new faculty committees were established including the Human Relations committee. This committee made an effort to put more emphasis on school as an institution for growth and for forming friendships both among students and among students and faculty.

This was a year of combining the new with the old at Shaker and of searching for a satisfactory result. Above all, 1966 was another year of progress.

Counselors Help Students Make the Grade

Personal guidance toward individual student progress was the aim of Shaker's counseling staff, and their responsibility was a large one. Senior counselors helped nearly 95% of the graduating class of 635 to find institutions for continuing their learning. Junior and sophomore counselors kept their charges in line while advising them concerning college considerations and scheduling.

Despite the discipline problem, "G.C.," sometimes called "Group Conference" but more often referred to as "Group Congo," gave the counselors a chance to talk to the students weekly. A group of underclassmen met during each physical education period. The senior class filled the small auditorium for their meetings and listened to a series of guest speakers who lectured on various vocational opportunities.

In addition to dispensing wisdom and placating mobs, Shaker's counselors calmed the fears of harried parents panicked over their children's futures.

Mathematics — Sine of Progress

"To strike a happy balance between teaching abstract mathematics at a level where it can be grasped by the student and not lose sight of the ever present need to apply mathematics to realistic, everyday situations," said Mr. James Bristol, chairman of Shaker's mathematics department, "is the aim of the 1966 mathematics program." It is also the reason that he hopes to eventually bring about a closer tie between the mathematics and science departments.

Several Shakerites took advantage of their mathematics backgrounds during the summer of 1965. Dan Berry, George Gelehrter, John Lewis, Robert Schumacher, and Gene Naftulin all studied mathematics under the auspices of the National Science Foundation. Each summer several members of the Mathematics department, too, study in order to strengthen their mathematical knowledge.

This year the courses in trigonometry and college algebra were both modernized in order to include more things that would normally be covered at the college level. For the future the department is considering both a computer course and more courses designed for the non-mathematically inclined.

English -

Constant growth and improvement characterize Shaker's English department, both individually and as a whole. During the summer of 1965 Mr. Paul Wild studied on a John Hay Fellowship, while Mrs. Francis Kroner and Mr. Robert Hanson both had study scholarships from the National Defense Education Act. The English department worked this year in conjunction with the Educational Research Council in an evaluation program aimed at restructuring and revising the curriculum. Outside of the academic vein, English faculty members displayed their diversity in other ways. Miss Carolyn Olds participated in a television commercial, and Miss Jane Howells was a winning contestant in a television show, the benefits from which took her to Europe. Shaker's English department also produced outstanding results from the student body, as Sharmon Sollitto and Cathy Permut were awarded achievement certificates from the National Council of Teachers of English.

Cries of olé, vive la France, and ecce were clearly audible this year not only in the classrooms but outside, as the language clubs joined forces for a highly successful International Dinner. Language newspapers echoed these cries throughout the year. As the level system continued to expand and the honors courses were expanded to all languages, language courses became attractive to more and more students. New text books and materials were employed in both the classical and modern languages in an attempt to increase both sensitivity and ability.

Enrichment and new emphasis were the key to this year's Social Studies department. By offering elective courses such as sociology and humanities the department attempted to provide supplements to the traditional history curriculum. A change in emphasis to the teaching of Non-Western-Oriented cultures was also effected this year through the Asian, Latin American, and African history courses.

The Social Studies department has a new member this year who is particularly well-qualified to teach American government. Mr. Graham was a candidate for congress in 1964. Other outstanding department members this year were Mr. Sarpa, Mrs. Jones, and Mrs. McIntyre who all had recent study-scholarships, and Mr. Cramer who published a book in 1965 called The Causes of War.

A-Ok Capsulizes Science Condition

To keep abreast of a never ending challenge in a constantly growing field is the challenge put to Shaker's science faculty. They are meeting it well. During the summer of 1965 both Mr. Hilliard Dell and Mr. Robert McDougal studied under National Science Foundation grants, and Miss Elizabeth Jaksa, Mr. Robert Goodman, and Mr. Charles Hendrickson also studied. With the introduction of new materials in the biology program, all three of the sciences became oriented toward the laboratory, whether it was dissecting a frog, testing titration, or observing the maneuvers of a "slinky." The Science Open House held in the spring gave the Shaker community an opportunity to observe the changes which mave been made in the science department, as well as the projects of superior students. One of Miss Jaksa's students, Cathy Spitz, had her science project published in The Science Teacher.

Physical Education Stresses Fitness and Fun

The physical education program at Shaker this year was centered around two themes: to offer every student an opportunity to expand to his maximum potential physically through a diverse program of activities, and to incorporate the physical education program into the rest of the curriculum for co-ordination of mind and body. The boys' physical education program rotated around a schedule of sports, while girls chose the sport in which they wanted to participate each six weeks. Sophomore and junior girls were required to take health once a week for six weeks, and junior girls studied first aid on the same basis. A course in senior lifesaving was offered both to qualified girls and boys, and twenty-five girls took the Red Cross Water Safety Instructor's course during the last twelve weeks of school. An addition to the girls' physical education department during the last semester was Miss Karen Craig who specialized in dance and body mechanics.

Each day at Shaker has its dramatic moments, as when an occasional Shakerite pants breathlessly down an empty hall, whizzes past an inconspicuous booster, comes to a halt at the door to a classroom which squeaks, foiling his attempt to make a silent entrance. Disheveled and distraught the Shakerite slumps into his seat, several minutes late to class. He has, undoubtedly, been participating in Shaker's physical education program.

Fine Arts Combine Creativity and Practical Know-how

Thirty-five seniors became National Merit Finalists, the highest total ever in Ohio. This placed Shaker fifth in the nation, behind two schools which select the best students from large metropolitan areas and two schools with more than twice as many students as Shaker.

Last year two Ohio schools beat Shaker's total of 22 finalists. Some claimed that the large number of runners-up, 34, explained this unaccustomed drop from first place. But this year 55 earned Letters of Commendation.

86 seniors received Scholarship Keys for earning a 4.5 average or better. The level system helps account for the large increase over last year's total of 45. Yet, Dr. Stanavage pointed out, "The main reason for this increase was the quality of the class. We feel that it is the best that has ever gone through Shaker. The level system only affected ten or fifteen; all of the rest would have received keys regardless of weighted averages."

Our Common Aim is

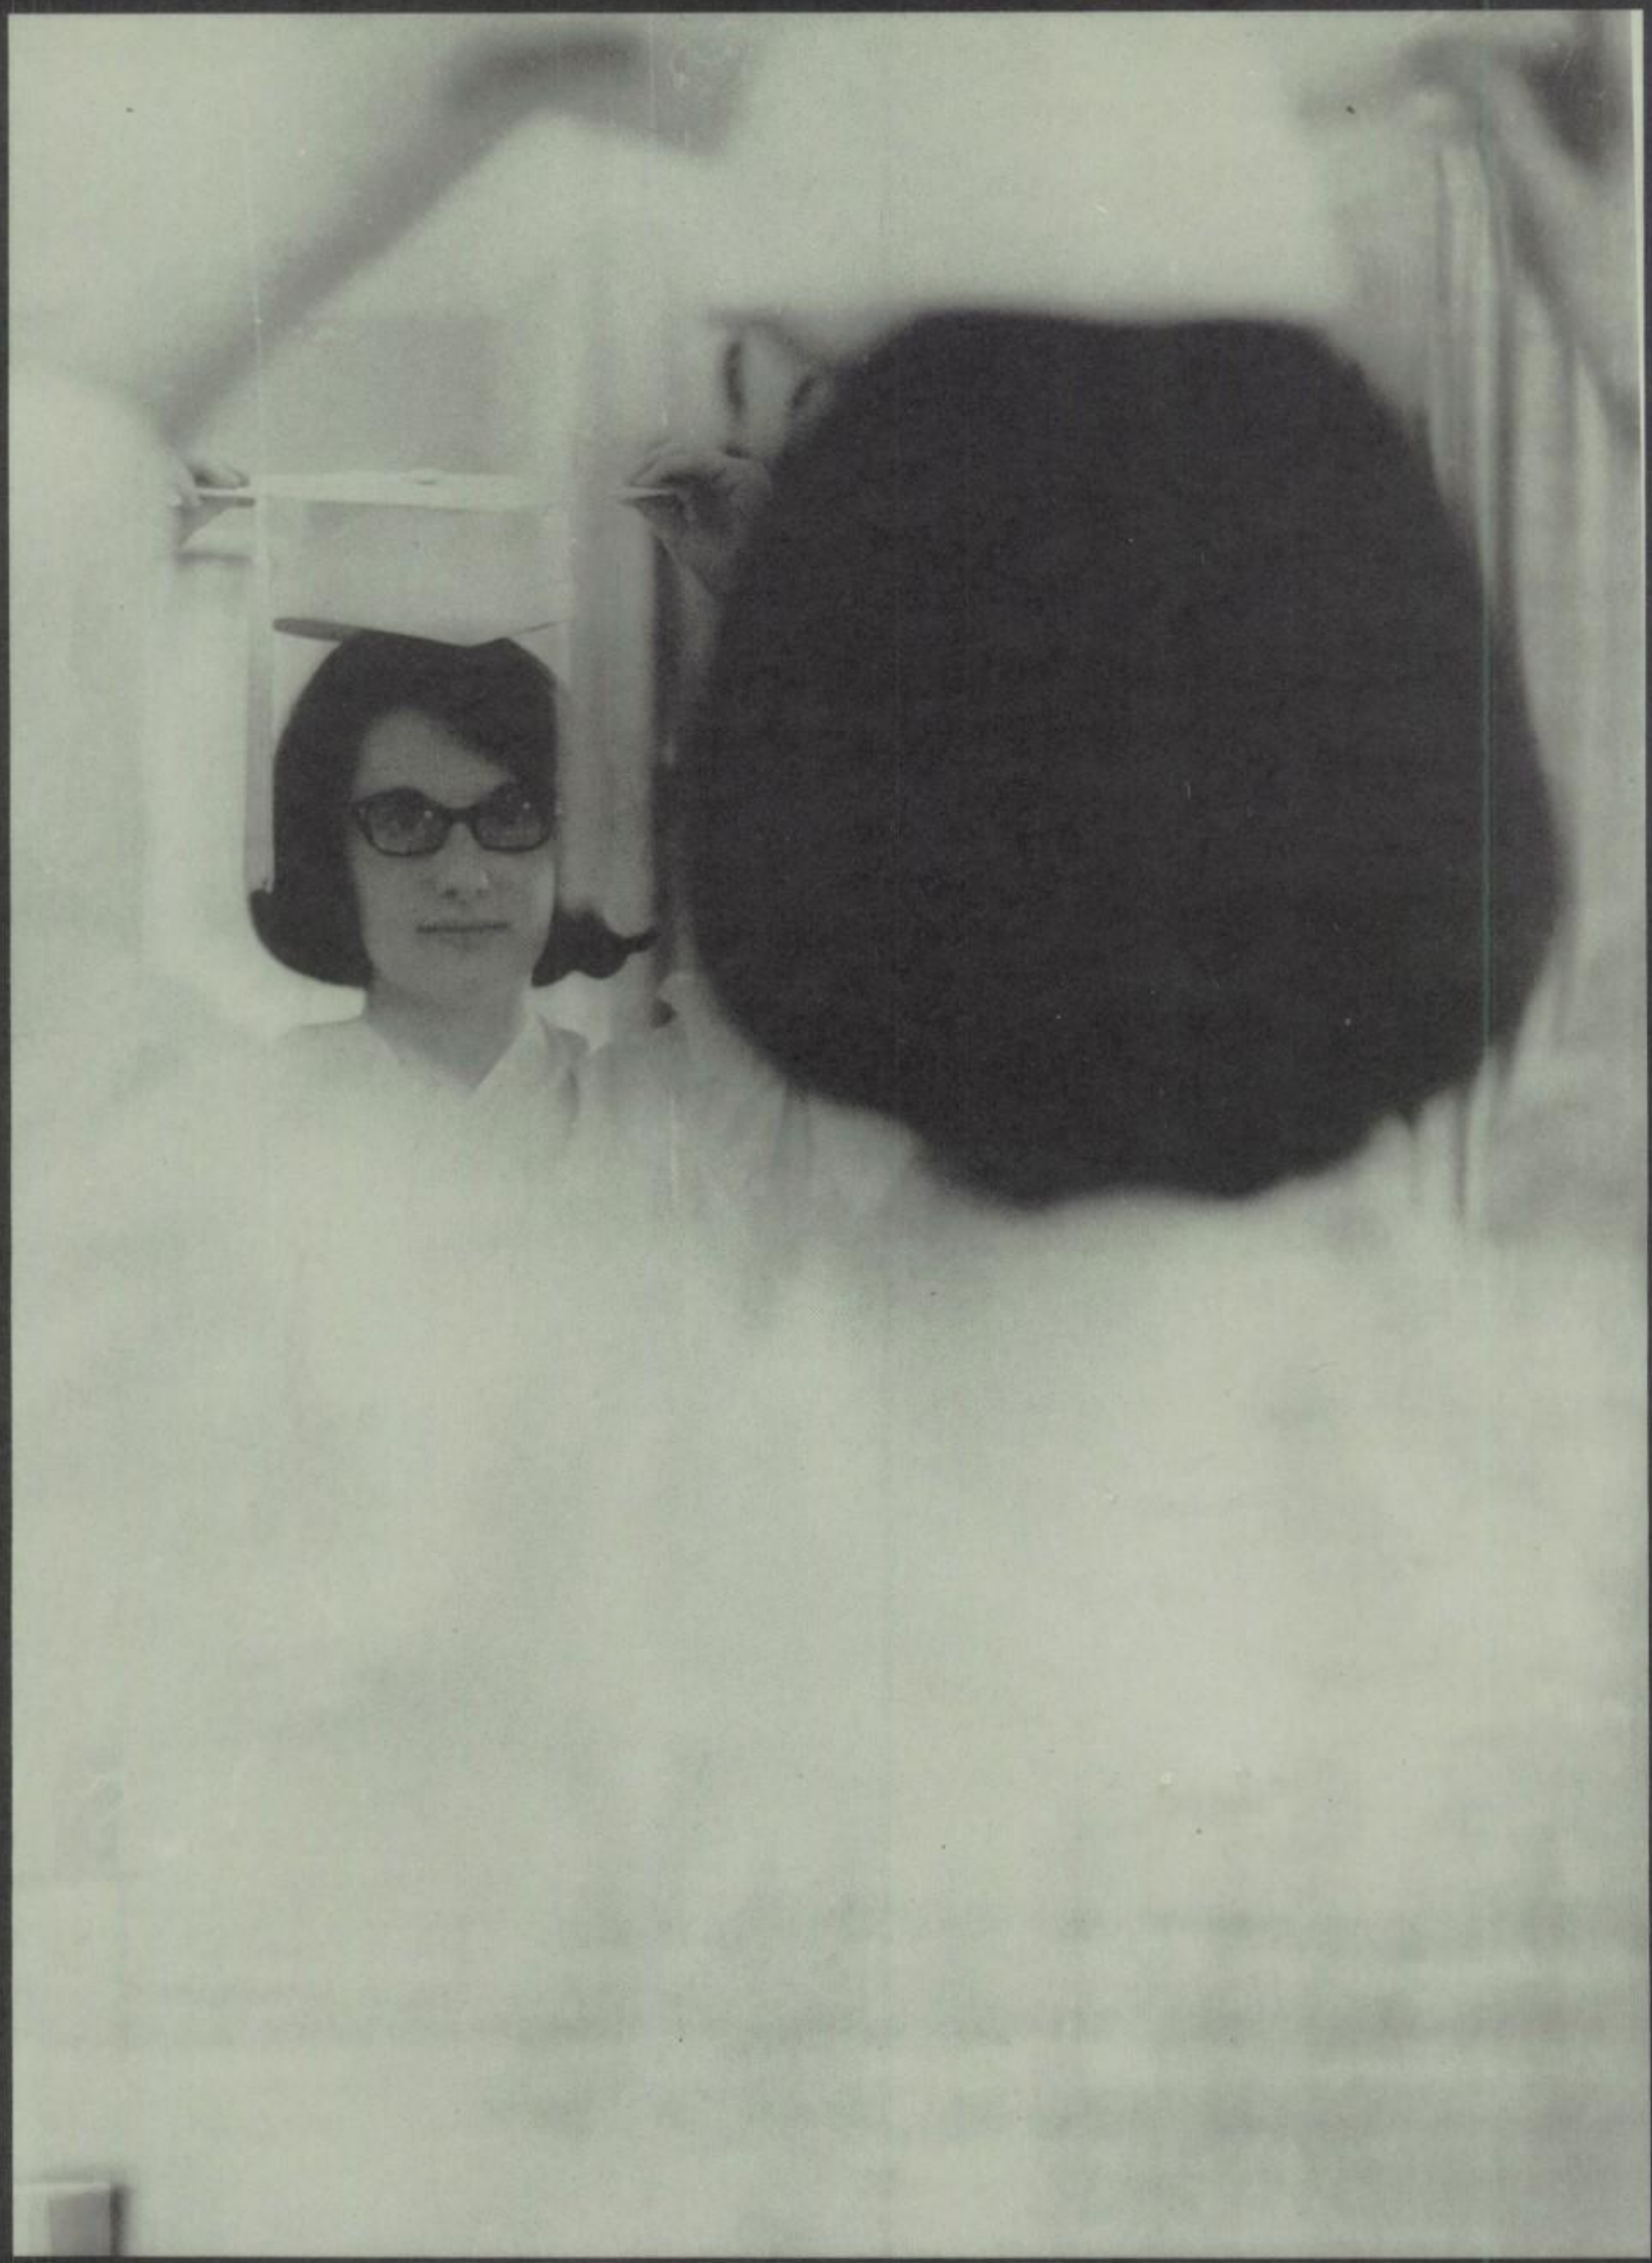
To Prove Worthy

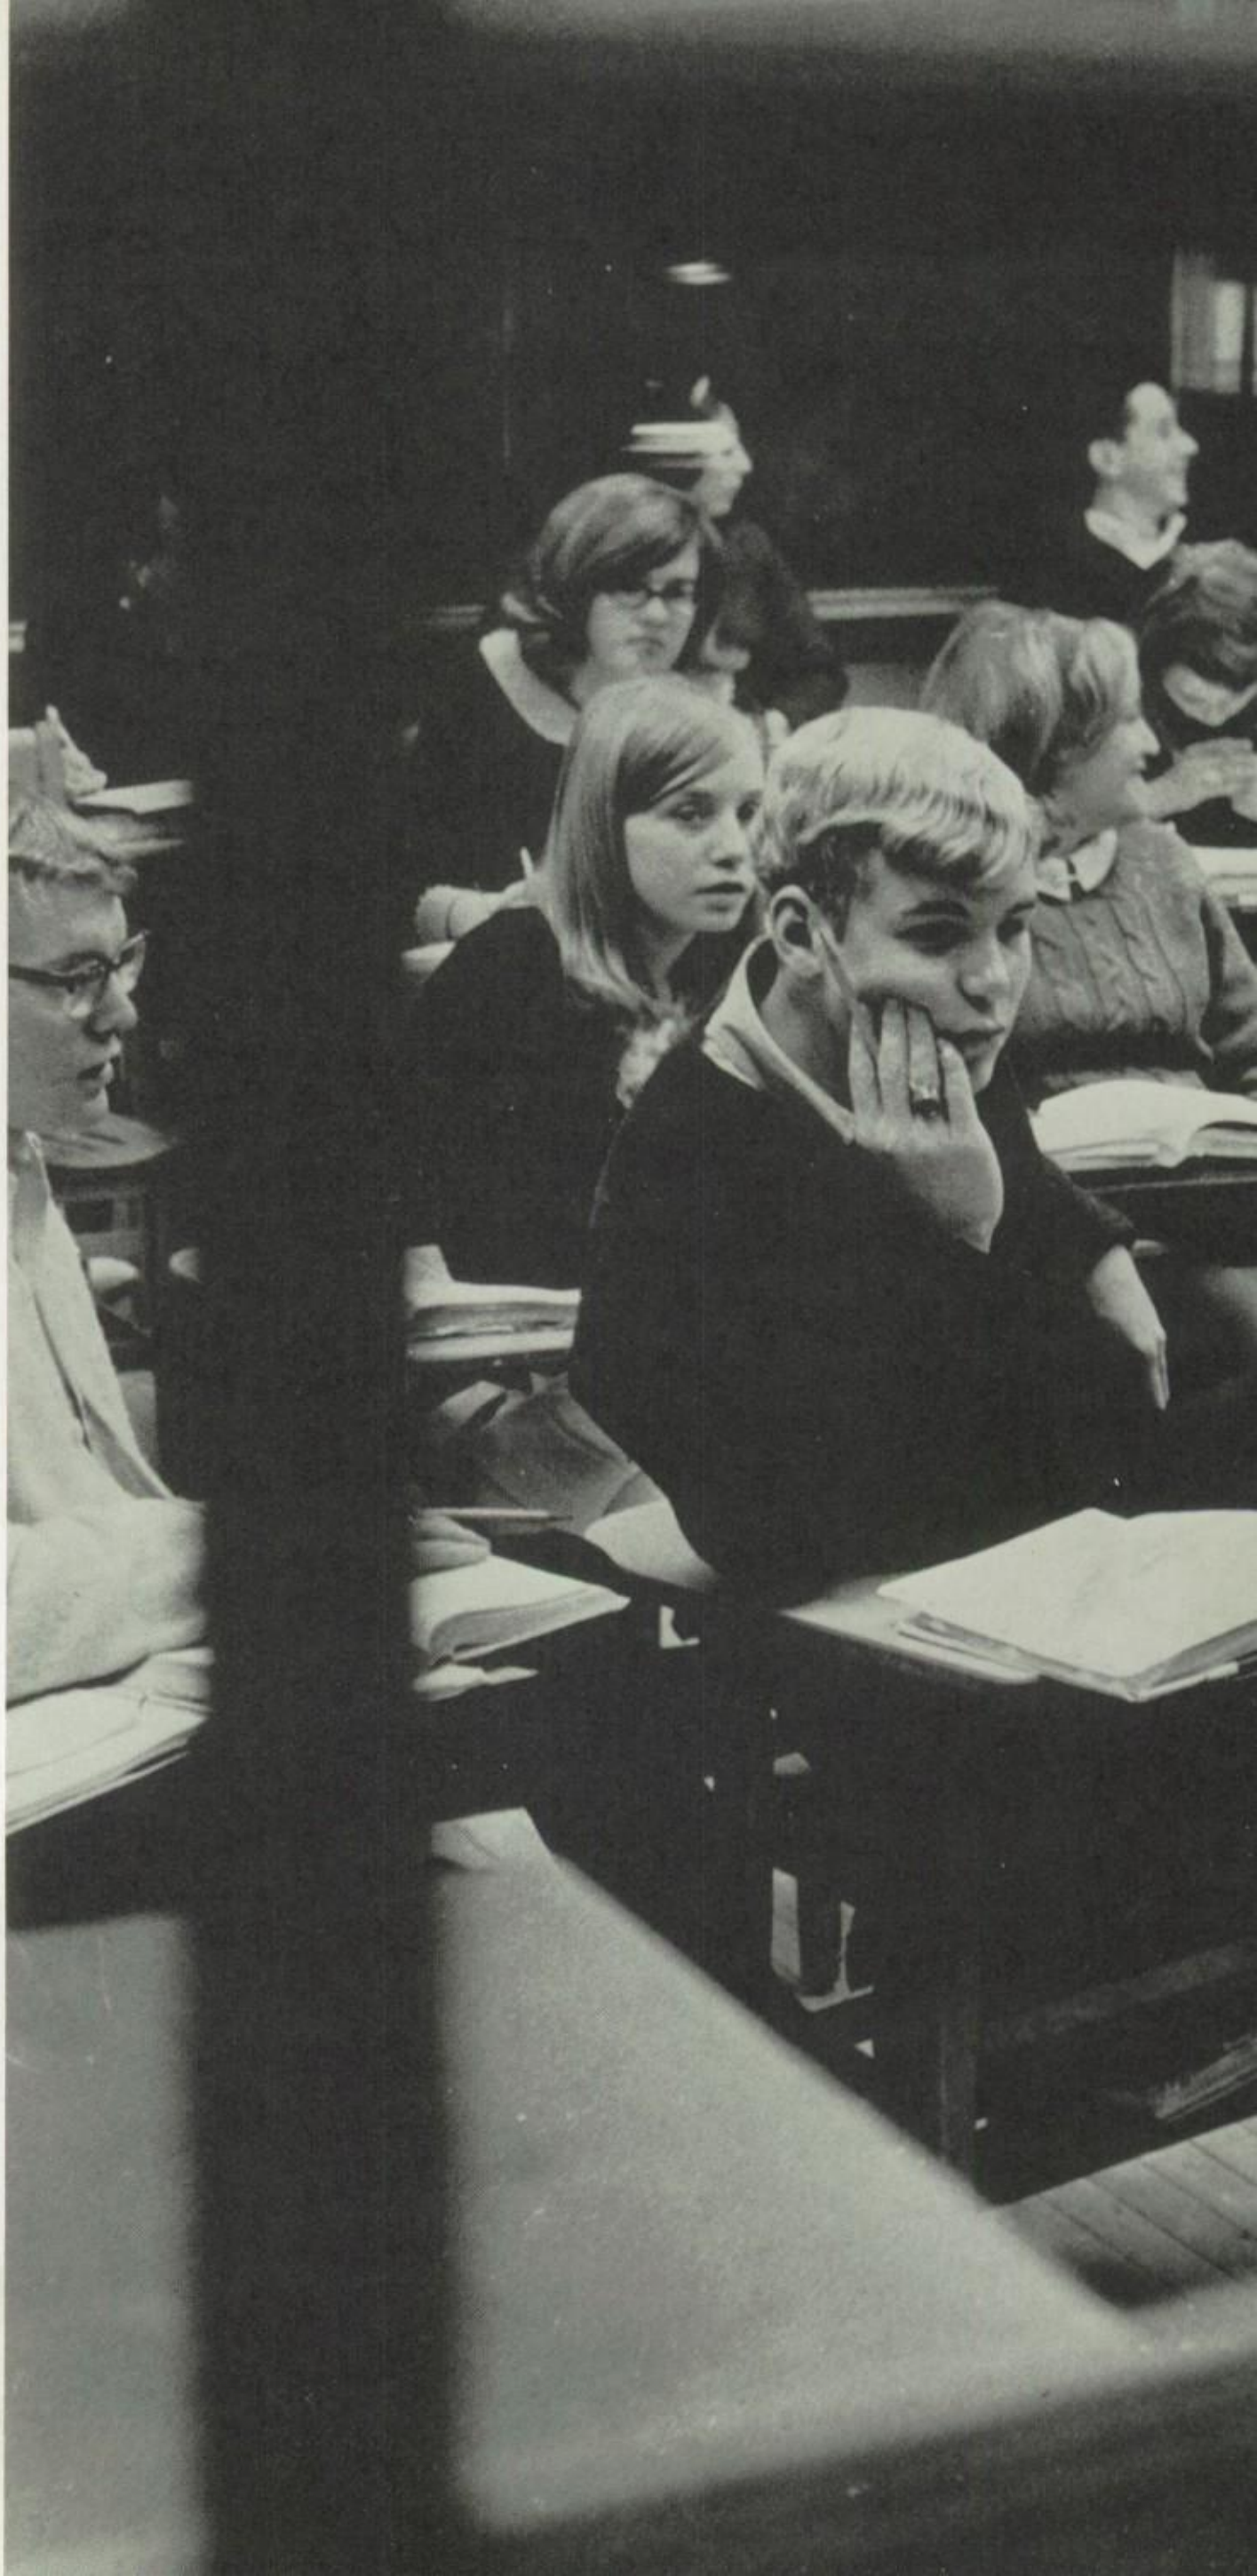
Of Shaker

Through Work,

Self-Examination,

And Reflection.





Classes are the inmost part of Shaker.
But the outside even creeps
into the classes,
embodied in the persons who lead them
and the knowledge that is learned.
It is right that this should be so because we are in
to learn about the outside.
In the classes
inspiration and procrastination take turns
as flashes of insight and daily routine wear each other down.

Up-holding the name of Shaker are junior class officers Mike Carroll, Rosie Braman, Abby Whitman, Heather Johnston, and President Bill Hoffman.

Juniors Stand Out from Rest of School In Extracurricular Activities

The juniors, the group in the middle, often feel that they are in the midst of two colliding forces. However, the pressures of high school propel them forward toward their goals. The class as a whole continued to prove that they had grown to become a leading force in the school. They outdistanced the other classes in the advanced football ticket sale, and they contributed heavily to the cross-country, football, and wrestling teams. Meanwhile, they did not neglect the arts. Four juniors, as leads in the senior class play J.B., carried the show to high acclaim. Members of the class of 1967 also upheld the reputation of the A Cappella Choir.

A large part of the students' activities centered around the classroom. Perplexed by Poe and Pythagoras, ambushed by Avogadro and Anti-Masons, stunned by similes and Steinbeck, the juniors emerged as upperclassmen ready to mold Shaker in their own image.

After sanding the bleachers to prove that they wished to enhance the reputation of the school, not to erode it, they regained the privilege of planning their own social events, which culminated in the Junior Class Party and the Junior Prom.

The year had its exciting moments, with each day bringing something besides routine to those who sought a lively educational experience. Most juniors realized that they had done more than merely attend school and take the S.A.T. and Achievement Tests. The year meant much to their overall growth. However, the juniors anxiously awaited the tintinnabulation of those last June bells, and so they emerged, older and wiser, from that "Strange Interlude" called the Junior Year.

Sophomores Are Made of Sterner Stuff

The class of '68 entered Shaker with ambition that for some manifested itself in personal achievement and that for others was thwarted like Caesar's. The Sophomores' enthusiasm for school activities was evident as they purchased the plurality of student activity tickets and contributed most heavily to United Appeal. For the first time they were separated into levels so they could compete with others of comparable ability. But at the same time the sophomores found themselves in a vast learning community with people of diverse interests and backgrounds. Sophomores wondered at such imposing institutions as group guidance classes, weekly movie days, noon seminars, and study halls. For many the change to high school was great, but most adjusted quickly and began to operate as members of the student body.

Sophomores also had the chance to enlarge or to consolidate their social interests. The female members found the upperclasses to be an untapped source of desirable material, while all took advantage of the opportunities provided by the Kickoff, Derby, and Homecoming Dances. Sophomores also burned steam in athletics, both on the field and in the stands.

As the June bells knelled the close of the year and the formidable three-hour finals, many said, "It was a far, far better thing that I did, than I have ever done." All agreed that "It is a far, far better rest that I go to, than I have ever known."

Sannamen Slip to 3-6-1 Record

Shaker's 1965 football team, after an explosive opening, found itself unable to muster an effective offense to complement its steady defensive unit, the "Workhorse Eleven." As a result, the gridders slipped to a disappointing sixth-place finish in the Lake Erie League and a sub-.500 season.

On a rain-soaked Maple Heights field, the Sannamen opened their 1965 campaign. The defense could not contain Maple's breakaway threat, Bill Gillespie, but a rampaging attack gained a 20-20 deadlock. The game's high point was a 48-yard punt return by senior speedster Rodd Heinlen.

The following Saturday, in sweltering heat, Shaker met South, the eventual West Senate champions. Platooning and superior conditioning enabled the Raiders to outlast the Flyers. Behind 12-0 at halftime, they roared back in the second half under the leadership of junior Angelo Valenti to post their first triumph, 20-12.

The Raiders opened their L.E.L. season against a powerful Valley Forge team. Junior Bob Hanna, who eventually finished second in the league scoring race, ran 37 yards for a touchdown on the second offensive play to put Shaker ahead to stay. The Sannamen ended much as they had started, marching 88 yards late in the fourth quarter for the points which clinched a 20-8 victory.

Shaker's next opponent, Cleveland Heights, which went on to be ranked second in the city and to escape undefeated in the L.E.L., was simply a better team, but the Raiders manifested great spirit. The aroused Sannamen took an 8-6 lead in the first half, and fell behind in the second half only after Heights scored on a controversial 60-yard punt return. With seconds remaining, the Raiders charged inside the Heights 20-yard line and appeared headed for a touchdown. However, Shaker's hopes for an upset were snuffed out as the pigskin fell into the arms of a Heights lineman when Rodd Heinlen was hit attempting to pass.

Following the heartbreaking Heights defeat, the Sannamen played uninspired football. The Raiders managed only two touchdowns in their next four games, while frequently fumbling deep in their own territory. The defense did well, but the fumbles increased the difficulty of their task.

Returning home after a five game road stand, the gridders displayed a revamped attack. The Raiders put together a potent offense to complement its solid defense in downing a highly-touted Parma eleven. Behind savage off-tackle blocking, the Sannamen rolled up 28 points. The defense, meanwhile, held the Redmen to a scant 50 yards in total offense. The momentum did not carry over to the following Saturday, however, as the Raiders fell to a fired-up Brush team.

Hopes run high for next season, because a score of juniors will return. The entire offensive backfield will be together again, joined by a potentially solid line.

Bill Bannon for two points!

Despite an insufficiency of personnel, the perennial problem, Coach Fred Heinlen's junior varsity football team put together a respectable season. In August, a large squad began to practice, but, by the final games of the season, an abundance of injuries and a lack of interest had pared the squad to a mere 16 boys. Since there are 22 positions on a football team, this deficiency of players made platooning impossible and substitution difficult.

The junior varsity compiled a 3-6 season record. This does not accurately represent the quality of football played, because the team often lost by only a touchdown or two. They nearly matched their opponents in total points, an unusual feat for a team with twice as many losses as victories. The victory over Cleveland Heights was the highlight of the season. The J.V. gridders had not defeated the Tigers since 1960.

Browns Return to Glory

Tennis championships were once tradition at Shaker. But since the last championship season, 1961, the netters have struggled with less than a .500 percentage. Until this year, that is, when the experienced squad swept the L.E.L. with an unblemished 7-0 slate and renewed the tradition.

The key to success lay in the team's depth. All seven starters came into the season with varsity experience. At first singles, Doug Broder achieved a respectable 4-3 record, which, nonetheless, was the lowest on the team. But the next two singles players, Tom Handel and Alan Geismer, had only one loss between them.

Meanwhile, the two doubles combinations compiled 7-0 and 5-2 records. At season's end, Aaron Miller and Jerry Florian captured the L.E.L. doubles crown. Murray Rosen, Ken Harris, and Brian O'Reilly also saw doubles action.

When the team smashed always-strong Cleveland Heights 5-0, it became evident that only Euclid and Brush would offer stiff competition. Neither Valley Forge, Shaw, Lakewood, nor Parma was able to capture more than one of the five contests in each match.

Shaker overcame the first obstacle, Euclid, 3-2. Tom Handel won the decisive match, as he proved himself to be rock-hard under pressure. The Raiders crept past Brush, the eventual runnerup, by the same 3-2 score. Alan Geismer paced the effort with an upset of Carlos Rivero, the L.E.L. third singles champion.

Harriers Best in Shaker History

All alone, Craig Vance streaks to the district crown.

The 1965 Shaker Cross Country team, a young and well balanced group of harriers, posted the finest season in its fifteen year history. The Ricers placed second in the Lake Erie League and tenth in the state.

Developing fast, Craig Vance, Joe Keithley, Bill Polley, and Dana Garfield joined senior Bruce Holmes to challenge the teams of the state's toughest league. Vance paced the team, placing first in all but one league meet and ninth in the state meet.

After easily running past their first five opponents, the Ricers found only two obstacles on the road to their first L.E.L. title. The harriers' great depth supplied the necessary power as they squeezed past Lakewood 27-28. This depth was not sufficient, however, to push the Raiders past Brush.

This season provided experience for next year, when four of the top five men will return to make a run for the L.E.L. title.

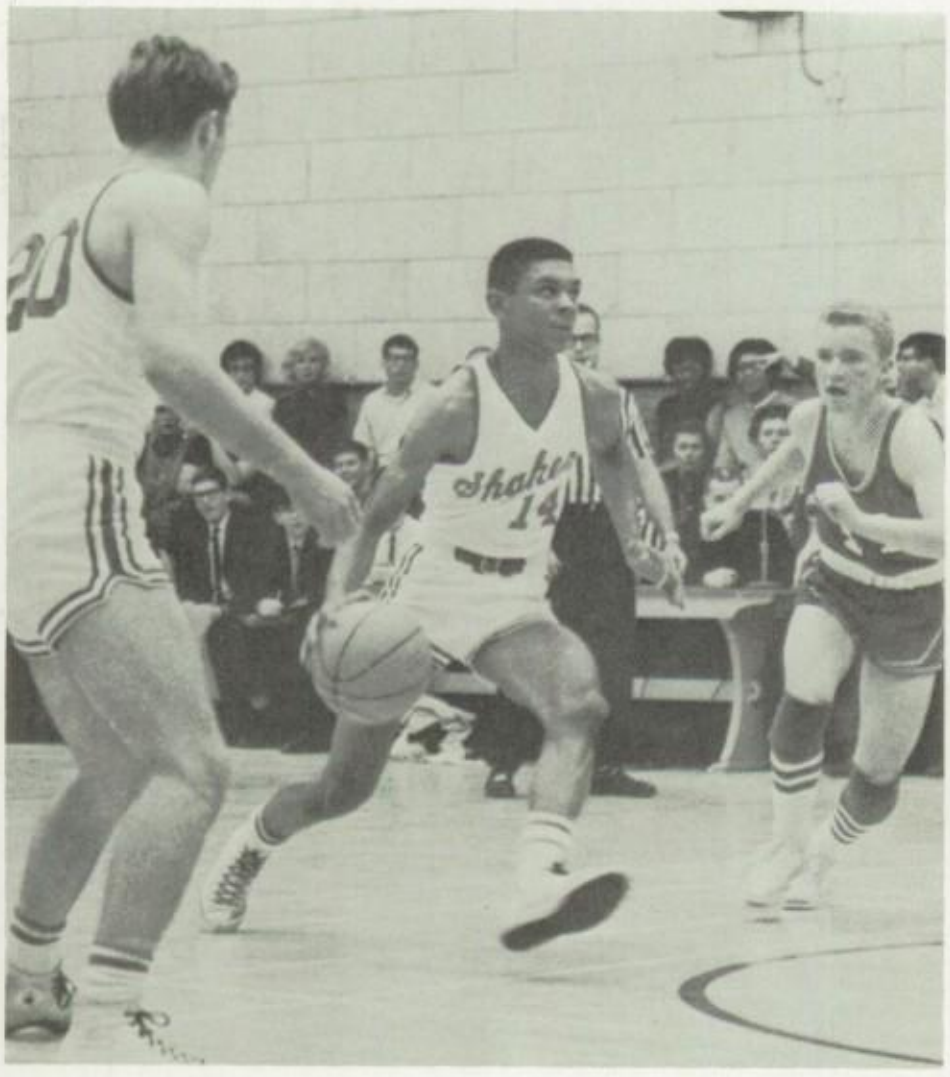
LEL Co-Champions

Thomas streaks as Heinlen stands.



With four returning starters and an all-league transfer student, the 1965-66 basketball team earned a 16-5 record, the best in school history, and tied Valley Forge for the LEL championship, Shaker's first. This represented a reversal of last year's last-place finish.

Although tied with identical 12-2 league records, the Red Raiders forged out victories against the Patriots in both meetings. Shaker won 80-66 in the first LEL contest for both teams. Rodd Heinlen led the way with brilliant ball handling, driving, and outside shooting. Forge partisans claimed that their team had suffered from a bad start, but Shaker also dealt them their only other loss of the regular season, 57-54. Heinlen's steal and subsequent basket with 20 seconds left, when Forge needed just two points to win, marked the high point of both the game and the season.

Shaker outplayed third-place Shaw, 73-67. The victory was more decisive than the score indicates, as the game was on ice early in the fourth quarter. In the second meeting between the two teams Shaw won 54-49. Shaker's incredible first half shooting percentage, 15%, was indicative of the nightmare. All five starters picked the same off night. Tom Paige, whose specialty is outmaneuvering and outrebounding taller men, could not carry the team against the midgets.

The shocker of the season was the loss to Cleveland Heights, 47-45. Heights played slowdown, gained a lead, and lengthened it after Shaker switched from its customary zone defense to a man-to-man in order to speed the game up. A last-minute rally fell just short. Shaker gained some manner of revenge, 75-67, later in the season.

After the top three teams, the LEL's quality dropped sharply. Shaker encountered little trouble in the other games, winning all but one by ten points.

For the first half of the season, whenever the team was in trouble, Marty Thomas rattled off a series of jump shots. He would leap high in the air, set his gyros, and then sink his unstoppable shot. After Thomas' eligibility expired at mid-season, Don Eichler asserted himself. Eichler led the team's scoring in seven of the last ten games, scoring at least twenty points in six of these.

Shaker decimated Warrensville and Orange for the first two post-season victories in its history. In the district final they played one of their best games and scored 75 points, a little above the season average of 69.7, but John Adams, first-ranked in the area, scored 91 points in a superb performance. The season ended in a blaze of glory as the Raiders scored 32 points in the final quarter, a sectional record.

Dana Garfield, the only junior of the first five, unfurled a deadly fade-away jump-shot in playing his best game of the season. With frequent starters Lee Harvey, Clarence Daniels, and Jim Robson also back next year, the team will aim to duplicate this year's record.

Balance was the key to the success of a team that ranked as high as fourth in the area and 20th in the state. Two of the outside men, Eichler and Heinlen, led the scoring with 14.3 and 14.0 averages. Eichler finished second in the voting for all-league players, while Heinlen made second team. Thomas averaged 12.8, but without two games in which he did not feel well, his average came to an even 15. The big men, Garfield and Paige, provided rebounding strength in addition to averages of 11.9 and 11.0.

Henry gets free from his man.

Unable to complement their "hot" shooting with a rugged defense, the cagers compiled a 5-13 record.

The little dribblers debuted successfully with a 40-32 victory over neighboring Beachwood. Following this, they yielded an average of nearly 60 points a game in five straight losses. Consecutive victories over Brush and Euclid, followed soon by a triumph over Heights, broke the string. But the defense then collapsed again, and the team managed only a single victory in the final eight games.

Despite their dismal record, the J.V.'s succeeded in their primary object, to provide a couple of basketball players for next year's varsity. Coach Al Raymond tapped Milan Tiff and Alvin Polk as possibilities.

Tiff, a long-legged, fast-moving guard, earned the title "sophomore sensation." He led the team in scoring, and burst over the twenty mark when "on." Polk, at 6'3", had to concentrate on rebounding. But he rarely missed his 15 to 20 foot jumpshot.

This year's J.V. squad played before more fans than any previous one because the spectators often had to come early to get good seats to see the champion varsity.

Mermen Sink Toward Bottom of League

Off to a school record is the freestyle relay.

The 1966 Red Raider swimming team, for the first time in Shaker history, was submerged below a winning season. Coach Stark's mermen did not lack the traditional individual prowess, however, as school records sank in the aquamen's wake. The Raiders' problem was the unprecedented power possessed by the entire Lake Erie League.

At the season's commencement, hopes ran high for a championship team. These hopes were based upon the return of all but a handful of lettermen and the addition of two promising transfer students and one sophomore. Fred Arsham and Alan Gross were selected co-captains. From California and southern Ohio, the mermen gained the services of John Ronald and Phil McManus. Sophomore sensation Dick Haas joined this quartet.

Lakewood's perennially powerful Rangers were the first to splash against the Shaker mermen, and the meet was a battle of strategy. The Rangers, unfortunately, out-thought and out-swam the Raiders, 52-43. Going out of the rugged L.E.L. next for a non-league meet, Shaker had little trouble sinking Warren, 60-35. The Raiders made the mistake of returning to league competition and dropped six of their next seven meets.

Freestyle specialist Phil McManus springs off the blocks.

Taking dunkings from Euclid, Shaw, Cleveland Heights, and Lakewood, the Shakerites slipped toward the L.E.L. cellar with a 1-5 slate. The Brush Arcs were the sole team to fall before the slumping swimmers.

The Shaker mermen, with Lake Erie League honors out of reach, began preparing for the district and state meets. The freestyle relay team of Gross, McManus, David Crane, and Haas established a school record of 3:30.3. McManus excelled in the freestyle all season. It was widely known that girls often came to swim meets for the sole purpose of admiring his form. At the district meet, the Raiders qualified four boys in four events for the state meet while placing a dismal eighth. McManus qualified in the 100-yard freestyle, Haas in the individual medley, Arsham in the breastroke, and all three with butterfly-man Gross in the medley relay. The mermen's misfortunes continued at the state meet, where only McManus managed to capture any honors, a fifth place in the 100-yard freestyle.

While competing in the district and state competition, the Raiders completed their L.E.L. schedule. The final stretch of the season was, to a small degree, more successful than the earlier part. Defeating two of their last four opponents, the Starkers finished 5-9 overall, and 3-7 in the L.E.L.

Coach Stark wonders if he is Jupiter or Neptune.

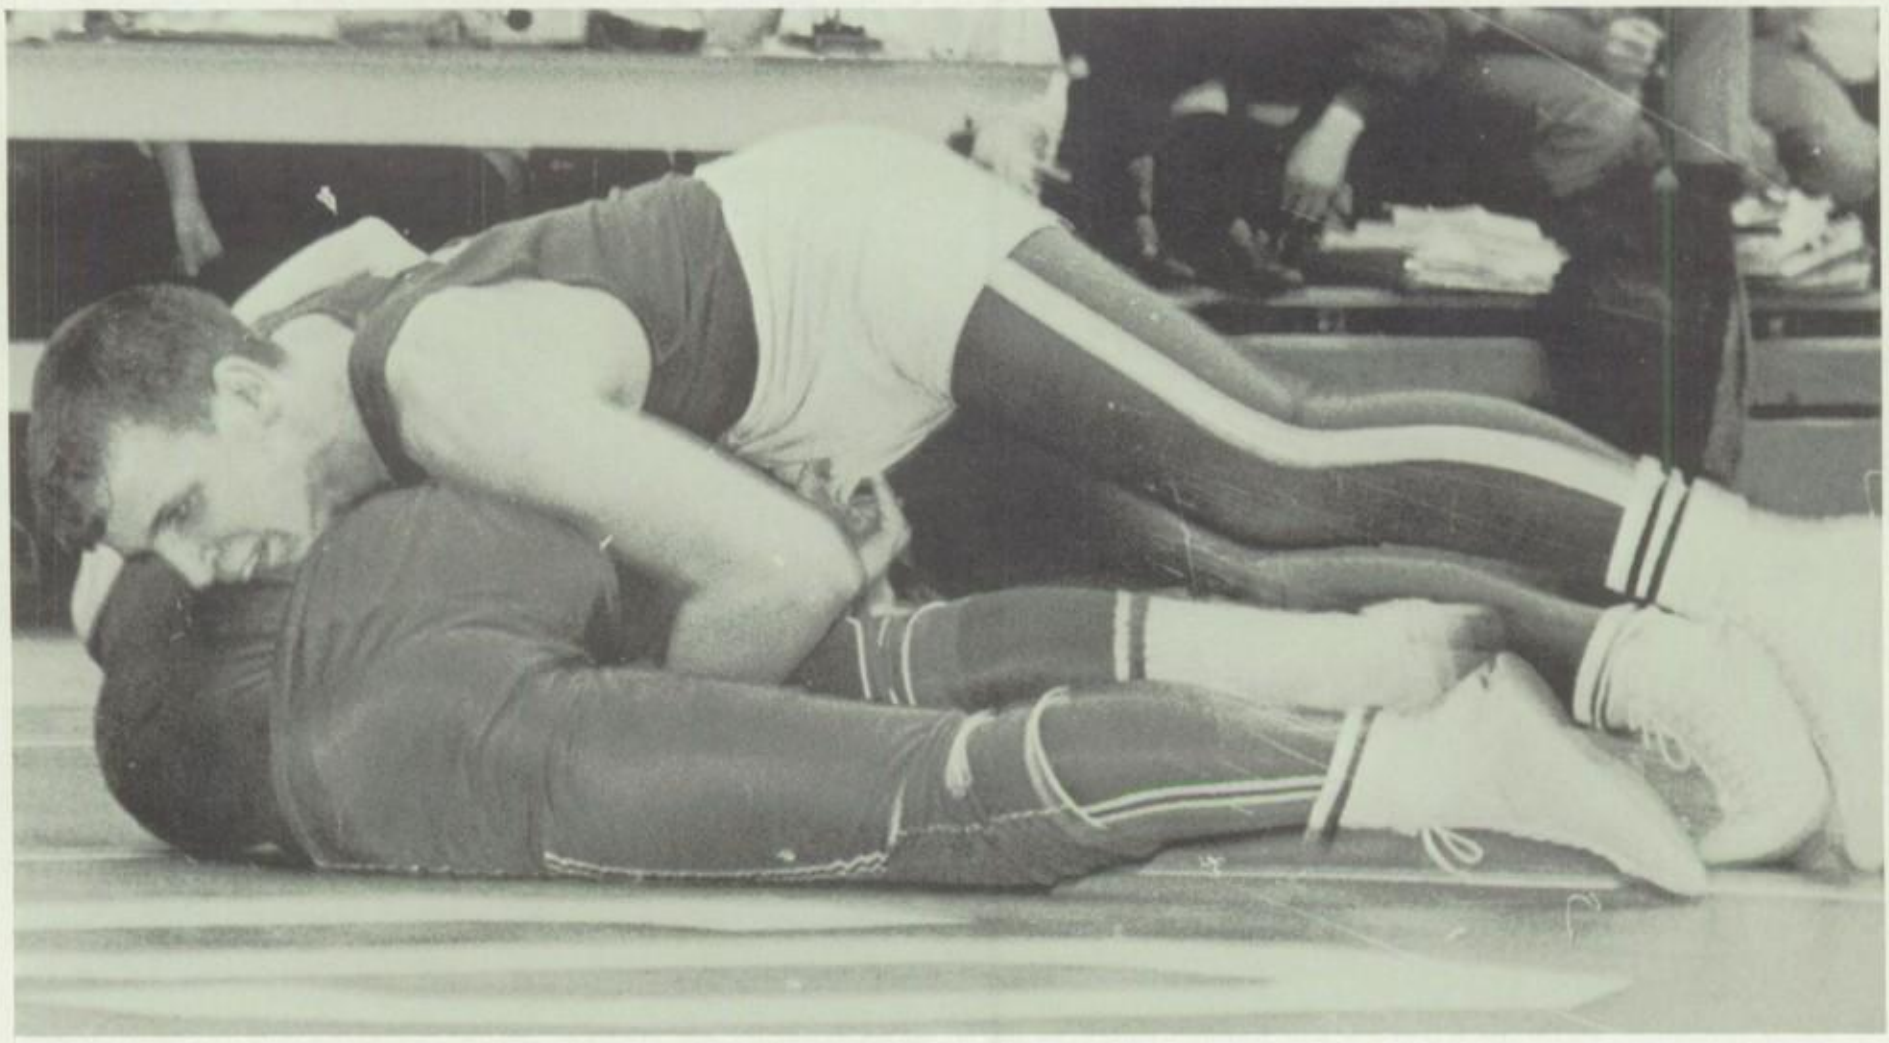
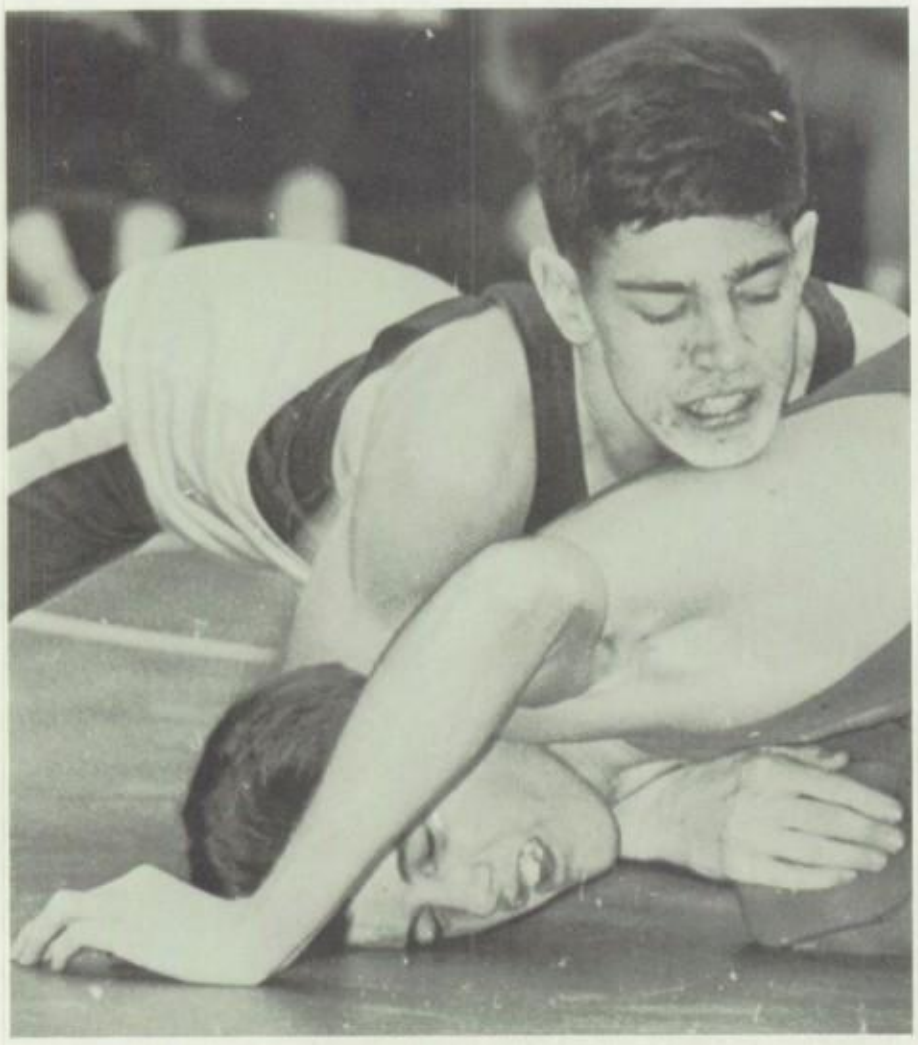
Suprising Grapplers Third in League



Sectional Champ Don Elfin digs in a half nelson and crotch pin hold.



An opponent finds Webb inescapable.

Although retaining only two members from last year's wrestling team, the Zippers posted a fine 8-4 season slate and a respectable 4-3 league ledger, enough for third place. The team was potentially great, but Shelley Pollock, an all L.E.L. choice, spent the year abroad as an AFS'er, Don Schneider, the best J.V., suffered an injury, and Phil Wolkin, a state qualifier, lost his eligibility.

Jerry Peterson, last year's state champion at 120 pounds, and muscular Henry "Bull" Berman were the leading returnees. Jerry Falcon, Tom Stepp, and Don Elfin exemplified the bulk of the squad, wrestlers who moved up from the J.V.'s and improved constantly as the season progressed.

The Raiders won four of their independent clashes. In the match before the league opener, Bedford prevented any overconfidence by squashing Shaker 36-3.

Valley Forge, eventual league champs, gained revenge for last year by defeating Shaker, 25-16. The Raiders came back with easy victories over weak Brush and Lakewood teams. Then the grapplers provided the upset of the season by knocking off Parma, 20-17. The meet came down to the heavyweight slot, where Shaker has been notoriously weak. But John Schofield, after falling behind on points, came through with a stunning pin to provide the margin of victory.

Euclid then broke the Shaker bubble, 26-8. The difference in a meet between two teams of comparable strength is the close matches. In this case all of the one or two point victories were Euclid's. By contrast, they went to Shaker in the Parma meet and to Parma in their victory over Euclid.

Shaker closed its league season with a victory over Shaw and a loss to Heights. The scores of both of these matches would have been different if Peterson and Berman had not been sidelined.

Four wrestlers advanced to the district from the sectional, in which Shaker placed third. Only Peterson reached the state meet.

Although his escape was as unstoppable as ever, Peterson lost a narrow 3-2 decision to Jake Holloway and placed third. With twenty straight victories before this loss, the Raider captain probably was Ohio's best 127 pound wrestler.

Next year's team will have seven lettermen and a shot at the L.E.L. championship.

STATE CHAMPIONS!!!

Sweeping through eight straight tournament games, the 1965 Shaker baseball team captured its first State Championship. The Raiders also gained a tie for the Lake Erie League title, their third consecutive year at the top of the league, to become the first team ever to win both L.E.L. and State crowns. Four Raiders were named to the All-Scholastic team and the coach, Fred Heinlen, was selected Coach of the Year in the Cleveland area.

The Raider nine had to hurdle six hard-hitting area teams to qualify for the state tournament. Brush and Canton North, the last two opponents in the sectional tournament, provided the toughest opposition. In playing Brush, Shaker faced Steve Stone, one of Cleveland's top hurlers. However, the resounding bats of Rick Krumlauf, Dan Biello, and Rodd Heinlen could not be silenced as the Heinlenmen sent Stone to the showers in the first inning and went on to win, 11-8. The encounter with Canton North, possibly the best team the Raiders faced all season, was tension-packed. Ace hurler Marty Liff won his own game by knocking in the only run of the contest with two out in the last half of the seventh inning when his grounder rolled through the legs of the Canton shortstop and scored Cliff Jamison from third base.

Upon reaching Columbus, the Raiders were only two victories away from the crown. Shaker slammed easily to victory over Rossford, 11-2. Krumlauf's towering 380-foot homerun was the key blow. Shaker's lead enabled Liff to rest for the final three innings while Bob Kidd provided relief. Liff went into the championship game the next day without a single day's rest just as he had pitched the last two sectional games in succession. He shut out Steubenville Central Catholic 4-0 while Biello drove in two runs and made two outstanding catches and leadoff man Rick Hawkins got on base six times in seven at bats. And Shaker became undisputed champions of Ohio baseball.

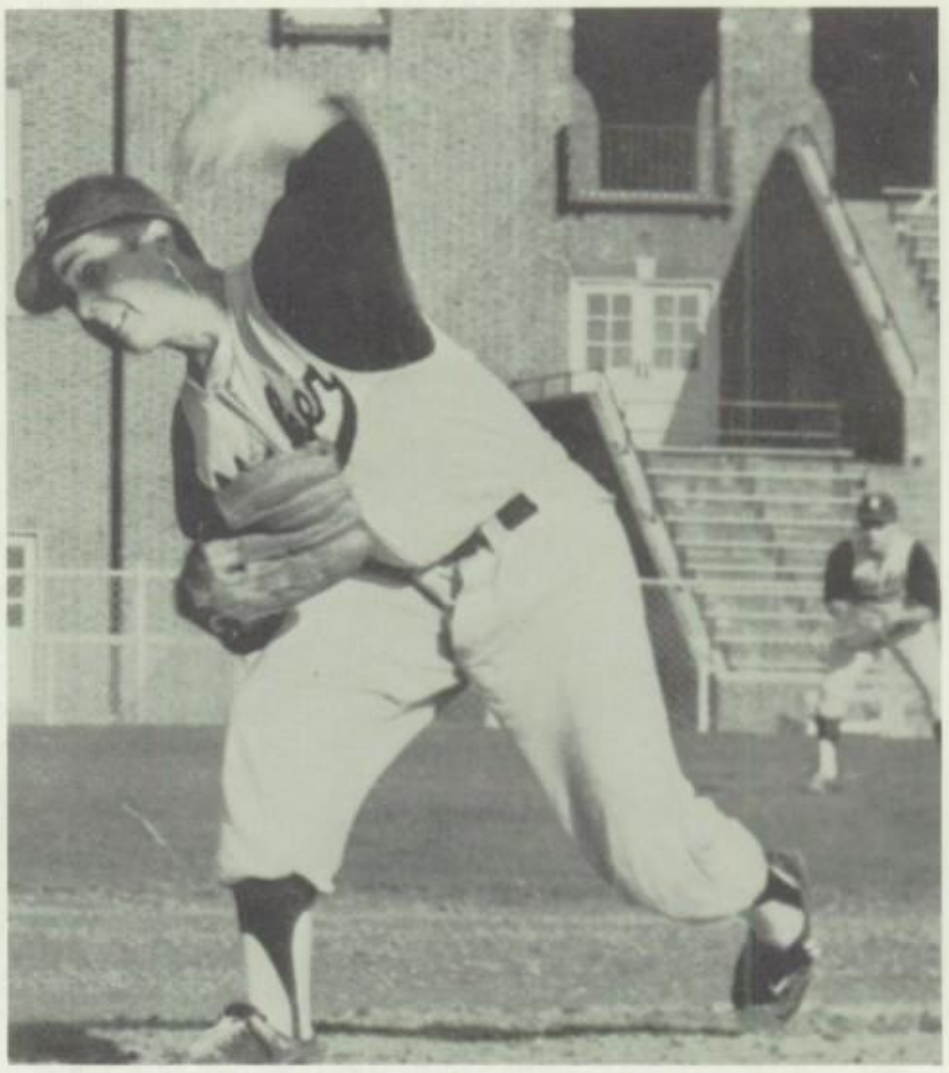
Returning home, the Raiders found their task still incomplete. A contest remained with arch-rival Cleveland Heights, the team that had dealt Liff his only defeat. Hawkins scored on two sacrifice flies in the last inning to break a 5-5 deadlock. Immediately the largest crowd in Shaker baseball history swarmed onto the diamond and congratulated the team. This victory gave Shaker a tie with Euclid for the league championship.

The Raiders pointed with pride not only to their team championships, but also to the individual achievements. Rodd Heinlen, named an all-scholastic, joined his coach-of-the-year father to form an unusual father-son combination. Dan Biello, Marty Liff, and Rick Krumlauf were all-scholastic and all-league choices. Liff was honored for winning all of the tournament games and compiling the best won-lost record in Ohio to go with an 0.51 E.R.A. Krumlauf was selected for the all-Ohio team, and the Los Angeles Dodgers chose him in the Major League draft.

Rodd Heinlen, Angelo Valenti, Cullen Pyle, Rick Klamm and John Pearson return this year to form the nucleus of another potential championship team. All have the experience and desire to again make Shaker, "Titletown."



"Masterful" Marty Liff shades Heights.

Stretching for power, All-Ohio Rick Krumlauf begins to uncork.

Ricers Plan Indoor Title Defense

With all but a handful of last season's cindermen returning, Coach Bob Rice anticipates a championship year in 1966. The Ricers plan a defense of their indoor crown followed by a domination of the Lake Erie League outdoor season. Looming as the largest hurdles are perenially powerful Euclid and Lakewood teams.

The Raiders, in preparation for the L.E.L. indoor championship, have completed their most successful indoor duel meet season. The thinclads, after compiling a respectable 2-2 ledger, feel their second consecutive indoor crown is a certainty. Enhancing this view is the power displayed by the Ricers at the city-wide qualification meet for the Knights of Columbus track meet. The Shakerites placed teams in all four of the high school events, with the Raiders two mile relay elapsing the Shaker indoor record.

Looking ahead to the outdoor season, the Ricers are seen possessing a strong well-balanced track team. The cindermen boast a fine group of sprinters to balance their great distance strength which was shown in previous cross country seasons. Dale Childress, Bruce Simon, Bob Schumacher, and Bob Hanna provide this sprinting punch. An assault on school records is also seen ahead of the 1966 Ricers for three indoor records were easily elapsed. Coach Rice feels the two mile relay may even challenge the national high school record.

Internecine Intramurals

"I'm not over the net!" claims Honest Bill Theisen.

A new brand of athlete has emerged at Shaker, the "gym class hero." The first group of these heroes is made up of boys with great ability who decided not to go out for varsity sports. For example, Jeff Glickman, because of his speed, is commonly chosen before an interscholastic track star in pick-up touch football games. The second group are the ineligible athletes. One ineligible wrestler is known to have turned an intramural basketball game into a football game.

Bill Shattuck bypassed the swimming team to captain his intramural cagers to the senior championship and a match with the faculty. Shattuck and Marc Buxbaum had no chance to play varsity basketball because, as sophomores, they lacked sufficient height to go with their other abilities. Since then they have both passed six feet. Enroute to the title, they had to upset Jim Tortorici's team, class champion two year's in a row.

Jerry Peterson's team snared the intramural touch football championship. Interior lineman Lee Rosen explained, "We won 'cause we were kind of dirty. We liked to use our muscle and rack up the other team."

Spirit, Service, Skill —

The Girls' Leaders Club serves Shaker with spirit. Its major function is running the girls' intramural sports program. All officiating, timing, and scoring is done by the members of the club. To become a member of the club, each girl must first pass written tests on volleyball, basketball, and field hockey. Those who have passed these tests are invited to participate in a playday. The new members are chosen from the girls participating in the playday. Members join the club each fall and spring. To remain in the club each girl must have a working knowledge of basketball, hockey, and volleyball rules and officiating procedures.

The club, of course, is not all work and no play. This year the club sponsored a volleyball playday and participated in a state Leadership Conference in the fall. On the social side the girls have an Alumnae Tea each winter, a dinner for all girls participating on varsity teams and an annual awards tea in the spring. Highlighting the year's social activities was the TWIRP Dance, the Oz Ball, with a theme of the Wizard of Oz. The club also gives a picnic each spring for orphans in the Hough area.

All of Shakers' girls make use of the pool even if only to pass their swimming test or to cheer the boys' swim team to victory. But there are many who find it a major part of their activities. The Swim Leaders spend their time in the pool assisting in swimming classes, advancing their own swimming skills, acting as scorers for the varsity and junior varsity meets, the AAU District Meets, and sponsoring a Playday for girls in the Swim Leaders clubs of the Lake Erie League schools. Outside of the pool they sponsor several bake sales and give an annual dinner for the varsity swim team at the end of the season.

The Sharcs combine swimming ability with music and develop synchronized routines. Many members participate in synchronized swimming contests and, as a club, present a pageant each spring. In December they began working on this year's pageant, entitled "31 Flavors," and from then until its production in April they developed routines and made costumes and scenery. Highlights of the show were the senior number and the club president's solo. The show was concluded with a traditional number done to the Alma Mater by the entire club.

Girls Spike Volleyball

Volleyball offers diversity as well as enjoyment. Students played on varsity, intramural, and interclass teams as well as participating in a student-faculty game and a co-ed tournament. This year's sophomore intramural team played the teachers' team, consisting of Miss Hill, Miss Burkett, Miss Bogart, Miss Leuty, Miss Hollister, Miss Nichol, Miss Gleason, Miss Jaska, and water girl, Mrs. Brattin. As usual, the teachers won, but only after a hard game. The interclass tournament followed soon after, and, to the amazement of all, the seniors were once again defeated, this time, by Nancy Centa's junior class team. Basic skills of volleyball are learned in class and then improved upon through participation in after-school activities and varsity practices. This year's senior and junior teams had a winning season. The sophomore team had one game scheduled against Orange but Orange failed to show up for the game.

Spirit Adds Bounce To Basketball

Basketball has always been one of the most popular sports and this year was no exception. For twelve weeks basketball was offered in gym classes. Under the supervision of the staff, basic skills and offensive and defensive techniques were learned and practiced. After school intramurals basketball took place three nights a week from 3:30 to 5:30. A new system was used in picking the varsity teams this year. At first sophomores, juniors, and seniors came to the same practice and worked on drills. Then the sophomores began individual play and the juniors and seniors remained together. The idea was to pick a varsity and junior varsity team from this mixture of juniors and seniors. Many seniors were finding their positions on varsity threatened, but by the time the games actually came the teams were once again senior varsity and junior varsity. The difference then was that Miss Hill, Miss Burkett, and Miss Leuty together coached all the teams rather than each taking one team. Although the first joint practices seemed rather disorganized, the three way coaching effort seemed to help our teams on the road to victory.

Grace, Movement, Precision

Dance, tumbling, and body mechanics often occupied the center of attention during the winter. The emphasis in these areas was on movement with relation to space and music. With practice in tumbling, many girls learned to master variations of front and back rolls, headstands, and snapping movements. The variations of snapping movements include the kip, headspring, handspring, roundoff, and other inhuman contortions. These stunts were taught in the gym classes. After six weeks, each girl presented a routine she had composed, keeping in mind precision, use of space, variety, and repetition. An intramural tumbling club was organized in the fall and spring for continued work and improvement outside of class.

A course in modern dance is a physical education requirement. Many girls who take this class only because it is required soon find themselves enjoying it. Each dance class put on a program for their period gym class which consisted of routines they had choreographed. An extension of this phase of physical education is Dance Club. Dance Club met twice a week. On Wednesday, they worked on techniques and basic movements, and on Fridays they worked on their individual compositions. The Dance Club gave a concert in the auditorium in May. Although they have put on other performances for other schools and P.T.A., this was the first time they had given such a concert at Shaker.

Individual Sports Take Over Spring Season

Robin Lorimer bird watches.

Individual sports rank high in popularity and take the form of such activities as badminton, tennis, trampolining, archery, and fencing. Many girls dislike team sports and find it difficult to excel in sports such as hockey, basketball, and volleyball. By participating in individual sports, the girls find themselves presented with the opportunity to improve and develop skills other than those common to team games. The body mechanics course, a program of exercises, is used by many as a warm-up to Modern Dance or as an extra incentive to stick to a diet. Trampolining has become so popular that very little class time can be devoted to it. Instead, trampolining is offered as an intramural activity at least three times a week. Weather permitting, much enthusiasm goes along with archery and tennis. By offering a variety of individual sports along with the ever popular team sports, every girl can find some activity which interests her and keeps her active and physically fit.

Shaker + Spirit = Sixty-Six

The cheerleaders efficiently fulfilled their function as it is widely accepted. They practiced all summer, so the choreography of the cheers was flawless. Furthermore, they had spirit; after Shaker lost to Heights, one of the girls refused to go home with her boyfriend, a member of the Heights team. They united the various emotions of the Shaker rooters into synchronized, and therefore more effective, cheers. Meanwhile, they served as a sideshow, entertaining the element that had no interest in the game.

The two returning cheerleaders, Betsey Stein and Debbie Curtis, served as the captains. The selecting committee, under Miss Hill, chose juniors for four of the five remaining places. This aroused some controversy, but the girls vindicated the committee. Adding bass volume to the cheers were the quartet of boy cheerleaders.

I hope that you will follow up your role as president of such a high-society and exclusive club as ours and reach for higher heights. This little essay seems typical of my dumb personality. It ain't exactly neat and I'm used bad grammar. This doesn't make sense.

Student Council Communicates

Open executive board meetings, homeroom meetings, and committee reports were Student Council's means of communicating with the student body. Homeroom representatives took on multiple duties in their effort to serve the school. In Council meetings they were debators, in committee meetings they were organizers, and throughout the year they were Shaker's chief ticket salesmen for most school functions.

Much of Student Council's work was accomplished through its committees. While Welfare's Sue Galvin was turning out shiny cars in the parking lot in behalf of Shaker's United Appeal drive, Safety Committee chairmen Ron Artz and Al Waller were planning their efficient method of getting them all parked around the oval come Monday morning.

The Book Nook answered Shakerites' demands for paperbacks; the Club Committee answered the demand for a student-faculty basketball showdown; and Shakerites demanded whether the Assembly Committee was still in existence.

The cleverness and imagination of the Publicity Committee were instrumental in drawing much attention and large crowds to the Derby Dance and the February Fun Fest. An expanded Demerit Panel counseled and recommended disciplinary action to the chronic offenders of school regulations while Central Committee offered the privilege of independent study halls to those who could discipline themselves.

Homecoming (pictured below) had its debut this year as Social Council planned a day which it hopes will become traditional at Shaker. Also in its schedule of new functions was the early morning event, the 7:30 Beat Heights Breakfast. The annual Kick-Off party, Christmas dance, and Christmas party for faculty children were prominent on Social Council's calendar.

The officers, working closely with Miss Nancy Hollister, the Social Director, and the committee heads were able to plan a program that was varied and full. They treated Shakerites to an after school band contest in the social room which primed the student body for a forthcoming gathering and successfully operated the ever-more-frequently-opened snack bar.

Where There's A Will There's A Booster

Booster Lynne Bernon chides behind invisible protective shield.

In Shaker Heights High School where the stairs only go in one direction and anyone navigating through the halls requires a little pink license, the duty of keeping peace and order is vested in the Booster Club. This group of students is responsible for keeping students out of closed corridors, checking class-time hall traffic, and maintaining order between periods.

Terry Felber and Randy Hughes headed this year's Booster Club. Working under them were seven captains, each in charge of assigning posts and seeing to the organization of one period a day. The club had an unusually large number of members this year and also a hint of efficiency. If not always polite and understanding, the Boosters were generally sociable when lonely.

Skits, posters, floaters, bus rides, Block S, and a lot of cheering were the Peppers' methods of shaking up school spirit. This group of sophomore, junior, and senior girls, by setting an example and transferring their own enthusiasm to others, gave Shaker an extra bit of sparkle this year.

Headed by officers Tari Krejsa, Lucy Neale, Betsy Friedlander, Ruth Lovshin, Nancy Snavely and Nancy Warren, the club expanded their program and improved the organization. The key to the Peppers Club was a will to work and an abundance of school spirit.

Their Interest Steams to Current Issues

The Junior Council on World Affairs was fortunate this year in having Steven Sheppard speak on his brother's nationally important Cleveland murder trail. In a joint meeting with the Pre-Law Club Mr. Sheppard gave his opinions and outlooks on the case and encouraged a very open questioning period after his talk.

The club viewed the movie "Making of a President 1960" and shared it with the school. Club members participated in the mock United Nations at Lakewood representing Syria, Yugoslovia, and Yemen. Members also attended the Cleveland Council on World Affairs' Annual Institute. The current affairs bulletin in the cafeteria kept Shakerites posted on the latest news.

and Understand Brotherhood

The Youth Council on Human Relations brought its work to the attention of the entire student body during the last two weeks in February. Several faculty members spoke on pertinent subjects at the YCHR-sponsored noon-time teach-ins. With an emphasis on their slogan "Respect for Differences," the club called attention to Brotherhood Week through its floaters, P.A. announcements, posters, and assembly.

At their monthly meetings club members heard spokesmen for the Peace Corp, Ecumenical Council, and Project Hope. They were shocked if not enlightened by a movie on the Ku Klux Klan, which they later offered for classroom viewing.

Youth Council can also be noted for having sent its members a more copious amount of literature in homeroom than any other club and for serving the best refreshments at its meetings.

Jim Anderson spent the summer of 1965 in Bombay, India, while Jeff Kern was in Takarazuka, Japan. Shelley Pollock spent his senior year in Brussels, Belgium. Each boy learned whatever he could about his country, and prepared to relate his experiences in numerous speeches after his return.

Shaker's Hi-Y (the bumper sticker boys) entertained underprivileged children at a Christmas party with gifts, and games, and raised money for the YMCA's missionary project. They proved to be real sports in athletic contests with the Y-Teens and in baseball games with the Heights Y. Ohio's Hi-Y chapters in a political coup usurped governmental powers and ran the Ohio legislature for a few days this spring.

This year for the first time the sophomore, junior, and senior chapters of Y-Teens merged in their efforts to serve the community. Fifteen strong, the Natural History Club offered its members a well-rounded program of lectures, field trips, and other activities. The club participated in several conservation projects, an accomplishment of which they are justifiably proud.

In addition the group took field trips about once every two months. The sojourns sponsored were of a strictly educational nature, the visit to the aquarium; or of a more active nature, the hike to Fern Lake.

Under teacher sponsor, Mr. Merkle, the Natural Historians explored many facets of the natural world both in the field and in the lecture hall.

L.E.L. Hosts Excel in Mass Singing

Opening the concert season with the traditional Christmas Alumni Program, the A Cappella presented a Vivaldi chamber mass with three choir members doing solo work.

This year Shaker had the privilege of hosting the Lake Erie League Choir Festival in March. The eight choirs representing the league schools climaxed an afternoon of practice with the evening performance. Heights' more adequate facilities were used, but this did not detract from Shaker's role as host, much.

An inspired group from the choir decided to form a sextet of folksingers this year. In spite of the problems of starting a new group (like choosing a name), the Unsung Singers—nee Sub-Cellar—had an active docket of appearances.

Proceeds from the Spring Concert in May, as well as profits from the Alumni Concert, supplemented the coffers of the Organ Fund. Special emphasis this year was placed on the fund, which was started several years ago for the purpose of purchasing an organ for the high school.

Concert Choir Harmonizes; S-Choirs Grow in 2nd Year

This year Shaker could boast a fine Concert Choir. The choir was somewhat short of male voices because Mr. Ellis took an unusually large number of sophomore boys into the A Cappella Choir. However, the men compensated for their numerical deficit with quality. The girls sang like birds, giving the choir good balance.

The S-Choirs, now two years old, bordered on the enormous. Nineteen voices made up the ensemble. Sporting their uniform of yellow shirts, the S-Choirs performed popular music on propitious occasions.

Dr. Bertha Maraffie, new conductor of the Shaker Orchestra, led her group in renditions of classical and pop pieces throughout the year. Expanded this year to include more members, the orchestra added depth and richness to its music. Under her direction they worked as a closely-knit organization.

Much of the credit for the orchestra's improvement goes to Dr. Stanavage. Under his auspices, Dr. Maraffie was asked to come to the high school. Dr. Stanavage personally interviewed prospects for the orchestra in a successful attempt to arouse interest in the group and to offer more opportunities for Shaker's cultural talent.

Flawless alignment in ceremony . . .

At football games, in concert, and in assemblies, the band performed with that degree of excellence that has always distinguished the group. For those few people at the football games who did not immediately rush down to the concession stands for food at halftime, the band, resplendent in new uniforms, provided a full program of musical enjoyment combined with the usual brilliantly executed field maneuvers. Blaring away heartily at every game, the band also inspired a team of talented and vivacious majorettes. The annual Spring Concert brought the year's musical endeavors to a successful climax.

Gristmill confesses!

The Gristmill staff is a loosely-bound group of seniors and a few misguided juniors who yearly gird themselves to the task of producing this literary achievement, this accurate chronicle of events at the high school, this album of revealing and emotional photographs. To the Gristmill member the word "deadline" connotes a horrid pagan ritual which must either be endured by tearing of the hair or avoided by procrastination.

An expanded Semanteme provided Shaker with the proper media for expressing its creative talent. From op art to Czechoslovakian poetry, the staff screened and published a wide variety of artwork and short literary masterpieces.

Co-editors Nancy Kopperman and Sharmon Sollitto, under the patient and sage counsel of Adviser Paul Wild, supervised publication of the two editions, winter and spring. The Semanteme enjoyed widespread success inside Shaker and represented student talent admirably outside the school.

Dede Ordin ponders, "Should a lady offer a gentleman a Tipparillo?"

Putting out a school newspaper once every two weeks is demanding and time-consuming work, but the Shakerite usually came through in the clutch. Besides offering invaluable journalistic experience to its authors, the school paper is a vital organ in student life. The Shakerite had the important responsibility of informing the student body of the most interesting activities of their fellow Shakerites inside the school atmosphere and out. In its own inimitable style, the staff of the Shakerite endeavored to reflect the constant strain of student life, a strain which is not always vibrantly fascinating.

On the whole, however, the Shakerite was characterized by fine news reporting as the year wore on. The sports page deserves special distinction for its superior quality; but sometimes even Anchorman Alan Geismer went overboard.

Editor-in-chief Jeff Kern, affectionately referred to as the "Great White Father," exerted much influence within the organization and also without, as when he convinced us to make this write-up less malicious than it formerly was.

Stage Hands Accrue Many Hours of Service

The stage crew's diligence behind the scenes was a tremendous asset to the drama productions and assembly programs this year. J.B. and Beggar on Horseback, the two major plays of the year, required intricate lighting maneuvers. The crew surmounted the challenge of the bizarre J.B. set. They added a creative touch to Beggar by using an overhead projector during a dream scene, changing the backdrop with several abstract designs. On stage, the crew hustled props and scenery on and off the set behind a curtain that concealed their frenzied activity.

In assemblies and in various productions like the Variety Show that required auditorium facilities, lighting and stage effects went smoothly under the group's expert management.

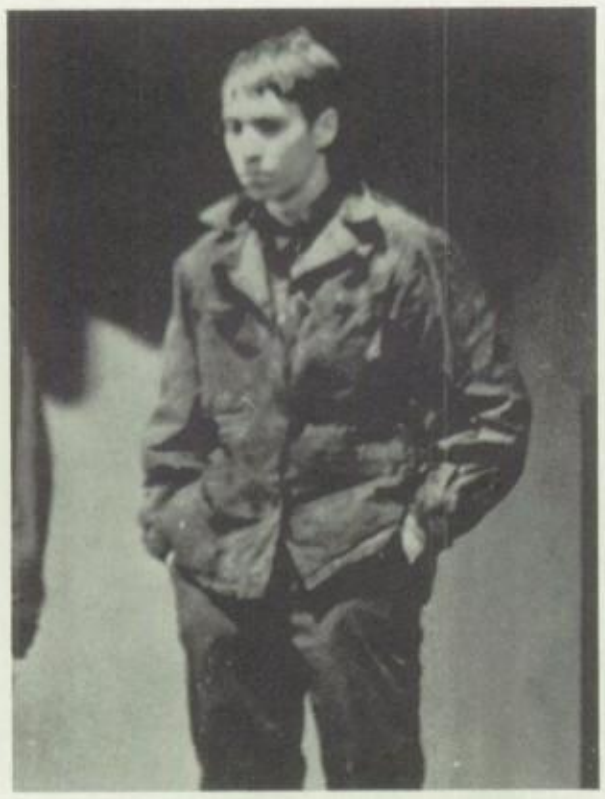
Beggar and Better, Thespians Do Yeoman Job



Mike Paul in 4 O'Clock Theater.

This year's Thespians probably participated in more dramatic activities than in any previous year. Their assistance was vital in the production of J.B. and Beggar on Horseback. In addition, Thespians in Mr. Barner's Theater class had roles in the two 4 o'clock Theater plays, a drama program initiated this year with the course. Thespians were also in the casts of the spring children's play and the Shaker production at the Hawken Festival of Arts. Only those who had accumulated enough hours on stage and crew were admitted into Thespians. The relatively large percentage of Juniors testified to the club's talent this year and potential for the next year.

Shaker Mathematic Society Creates Sensation

Frank Ryan on sets: "After I get set in the pocket, I look for the setback . . ."

Planning weekly meetings and writing the biennial math review kept the Math Club officers busily calculating. The high point of the year was Frank Ryan's visit. He spoke to the members and various other avid admirers on the set theory. President Larry Barker, who invited Mr. Ryan to speak, boosted Math Club's prestige immensely by that meeting.

For the rest of the year the club settled back into the routine of average speakers and medium sized audiences. The vivacity of club sponsor Jim Bristol added much to the interest of the meetings, which were held for the most part in his room.

Pre-Med Predominantly Meditates

The Pre-Med Club officers turned their interest from mice to men this year by initiating a project dealing with ESP (extra sensory perception). They used cards labeled with circles, squares, pluses, and ripples and experimented with various people's arrangement of these cards.

Elliott Kool was in charge of the annual sophomore blood test. The people in biology classes had the option of choosing to have their blood analyzed by the Pre-Med club members. Dangerous though this procedure was, only one or two sophomores were lost in the process, and it made the studies of hemotology much more exciting.

Most of the year's meetings dealt with these two activities. Mr. Dell, the adviser, proved helpful in assisting in both these projects. The meetings were held in the congenial atmosphere of Mr. Dell's room among the dead animals in formaldehyde and the many microscopes.

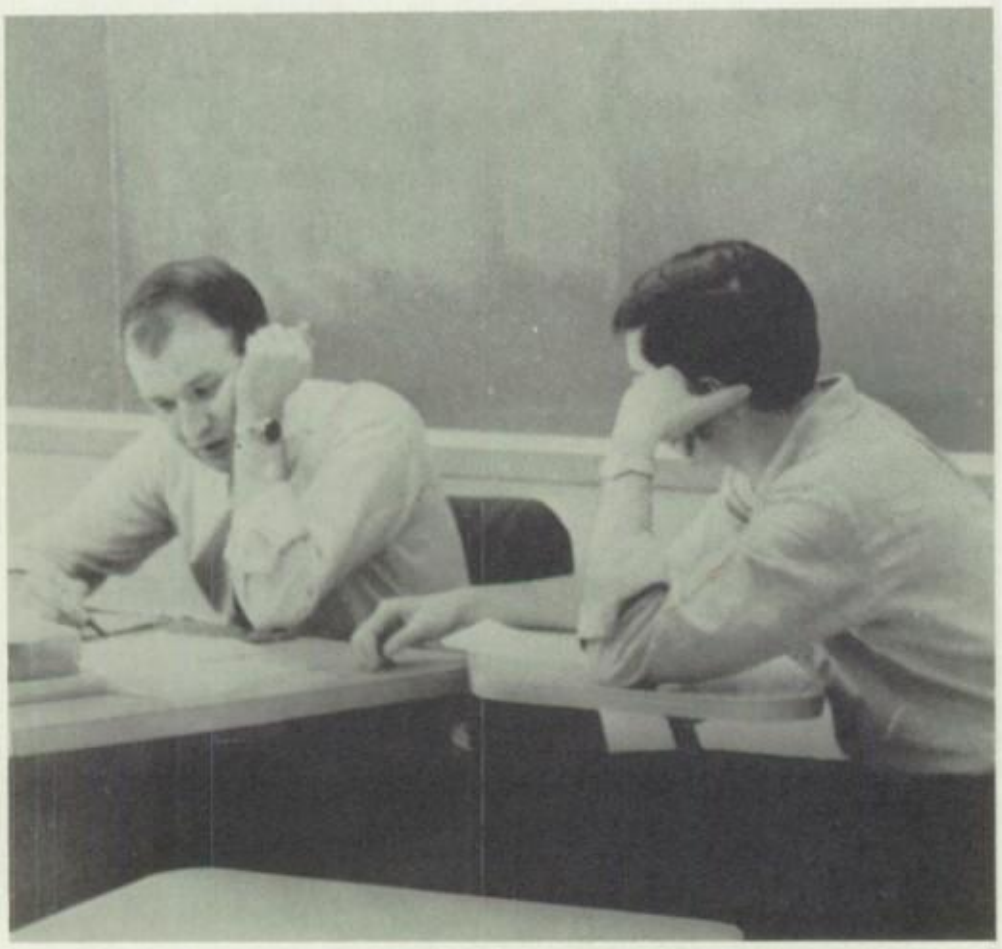
Pre-Law Prologues Legal Profession



The Pre-Law Club, led by President Terry Felber, explored extensively the possibilities in the fields of law and politics. Speakers at the meetings included Judge Gagliardo and Dr. Steve Shepherd, the brother of Dr. Sam Shepherd. Dr. Shepherd gave an exciting speech on his brother's trial. Because of the interest that was sparked by this meeting, club sponsor, Mr. Graham, made a trip to Washington, D.C. to see Sam Shepherd's case before the Supreme Court. Among the students that went on this trip was club vice-president Andy Lane.

A mock trial was held in the spring. The club concerned itself with this and various other activities after the excitement about Sam Shepherd waned. Part of the club was on a resolution committee which tried to draft a resolution for Congress.

Bridge Club Betters Bidders

Few true bridge enthusiasts are mingled among the members of the Bridge Club who attend the meetings to play a few hands and then rush to get the refreshments. After the refreshments, however, the spirit of those bridge lovers seems to get the upper hand and everyone settles down to play a good game. For those who are unskilled at the game, lessons are given by the officers or the adviser Mr. Holzhauser. The Bridge Club is engaged in the practice of bridge not for victory in competition, but merely for the enjoyment of the game and for the mental challenge it presents.

The officers planned a bridge tournament for the whole school in the spring. Although the Bridge Club was not large, it helped to inspire more people to participate in the nation's most popular card game, bridge.

Chess Men Topple Opponents

Do you know that there is a Chess Club at Shaker? Have you ever heard anything about it or seen it in action? No. Much to the surprise of the majority of students, a Chess Club exists and it is very good. In fact, it is the second best chess team in the state. At Christmas the club sent a team consisting of president Chuck Koplik, Mark Selker, Mike Cavallo, and vice-president Dan Schonberg to the state tournament where they won the title of second best, missing first by a mere half point. Almost every afternoon in the silences of post-school hours there are some members of the Chess Club in room 155 concentrating on their board of silent warriors. The Chess Club has two teams that play in area competitions. The A team has the distinction of being undefeated for the third consecutive year.

Debators Belabor Tough Topic

Two years ago when he saw a debate trophy, an administrator said, "I didn't even know we had a Debate Club." Since that time the principal Dr. Stanavage and the officers, led by captain Carl Einstein and president Bob Brody, have tried to increase the club's prestige. Dr. Stanavage spearheaded the effort by bringing Mr. Gar Aikens to Shaker as coach.

The debaters learned to argue both sides of the national topic, "Resolved, that the federal government should adopt a policy of compulsory arbitration in basic industries." This offered ample opportunities for such things as swipes at the New York Transit Workers and knocks at big business. Other members of the club participated in speech competition.

Although this year's club had accomplished little by the end of the semester, they hoped to gain momentum before the state tournament.

The French club had an active, interesting year. Besides sponsoring the French newspaper, Le Journal, they planned the International Dinner and their regular club meetings. Wendy Nelson and Barb Grau were in charge of the dinner which included the three language clubs and all the exchange students. Club officers, president Lionel Weber, secretary Linda Bondar, treasurer Barb Grau, and social chairman Mirfee Klein planned the meetings which were conducted in French. One notable meeting was a movie of a Marcel Marceaue pantomime of The Overcoat by Gogol.

Robin Kovachy was the editor and main writer of Le Journal. The club advisor was Miss Schneider.

Gay Spaniards Follow Fun

Ole!

Everything but castanets at the International Dinner!

The Spanish Club had a great season of games and fiestas conducted in the native language. They had various speakers from South American countries and some exchange students as attractions at the meetings. On December 15 there was a large fiesta for Christmas. The pinatas which hung from the ceiling were soon broken, sending showers of candy on all the participants. At all the meetings there was an air of gaiety and Latin vitality brought about mostly by the club's competent officers. In this atmosphere of relaxation outside of the classroom, Spanish was spoken with more ease and fluency as the year progressed. This was beneficial to the nearly 100 members of the club, and it was also novel and fun.

Romans Pursue Apollonian Ideals in Dionysian Ways

The meetings of the Latin Club were highlighted by speeches by Dr. Bliss, a classics professor at Western Reserve, and Mr. Bresnicky, formerly a Shaker Latin teacher who is now working at Hawken. Dr. Bliss gave a lecture on the possibilities for a future in the field of Latin. Mr. Bresnicky was simply himself and talked about those values which were precious to him.

The members of the Latin club participated in the International Dinner by performing a skit in ancient garb. The officers planned a party at the end of March to lift the spirits of all slumping seniors.

Seven Arts Council Overcomes Obstacles

This year, Seven Arts Council officers discovered that building a club from scratch is a demanding task. With a limited budget and limited membership, the council presented fewer programs than they had hoped, finding that short notice is frowned upon by the powers that be. Although several major plans were scrapped because of the club's fatally late start, the club presented several exciting programs. One of these was a poetry reading by Russell Atkins and Adelaide Simon, editors of the Free Lance, a magazine of poetry and prose. Another was the film, "In the Park" by French pantomimist Marcel Marceau. This year's experience is expected to lay a foundation for the club's future.

Marksmen Rifle New Range

Pistol Pete Jaques tries his hand with the Kentucky long rifle.

The Rifle Club, under the supervision of Charles Hendrickson, had an active year. The membership of 45 boys and one girl used the new rifle range in the basement to practice their marksmanship. Since the rifle range would not accommodate all the members at the same time, the club had to be divided into four sections. Each member could shoot only once every two weeks. They were not simply shooting for pleasure but to meet the civilian marksmanship requirements. Mr. Hendrickson had the supreme duty of official scorekeeper. In the spring they competed for class trophies.

Eager Equestrians Exercise Ability

On early fall and spring afternoons members of the Shaker Equestrian Society could be seen after school eagerly awaiting Fox's bus that took them to Red Raider and their riding lessons. This was the main function of the club, to provide lessons for the avid but unskilled students of equitation. During the winter the club all but died out. However, they had some speakers and movies about horses.

During that time the officers were busy planning extra activities for the spring. A sunrise picnic and a hayride were planned. Under the leadership of president Linda Elman the club was three times as large this year as it was last year.

Riding Club Officers: president Linda Elman, vice president Wendy Hoffman, secretary Freda Wilkerson, treasurer Jane Bard.

Shaker Bowlers Strike Out

Competing in three series of competition during the year, the boys in the Bowling Club rolled for trophies and for the chance to bowl against other teams in the suburban area. Every few weeks there was a suburban roll-off at which the best teams in the area competed. Although our bowling club was not usually victorious, they continued to practice and improve under the coaching of the adviser Mr. Melick. At the end of the second semester, the winners of the three bowling series competed for the championship at a final roll-off, and then there was a dinner for the champion of the year.

Getting In the Last Word

From a chaotic mess we have fashioned order in the form of a yearbook. The Gristmill staff does not train its members in advance so that their product is of the highest possible quality. Rather we present people with the real-life challenge of learning as they go along through the estimation and error process. The struggle itself, with its accompanying sweat and failures, is the primary consideration. Therefore the pages straggled in, generally after each of the five deadlines, and the Gristmillers straggled home, often after midnight. Even now it is hard to imagine that the result of all this individual effort, hampered by lost negatives, misestimations, and the censor, will be a unified whole.

And certainly no one was more confused than I. The staff has accused me of suffering from a fit of neurotic delusion when I decided to take on the position of editor in chief alone. I spent most of the year goading photographers, Robin "Boy Wonder" Kovachy, and other laggards, holding off the printer, and replying to pleas of help with the statement, "Let's face it, you probably know more about it than I do." Meanwhile I dabbled in nearly every part of the process: writing copy, headlines, and cutlines, taking and printing pictures, and proofreading. One wily female even managed to connive me into doing a page for her from start to finish. By the night of the final deadline I found myself working alone in the darkroom at school at 3 A.M. and feeling like a martyr.

Of course, I loved every minute of it. No where else in the school do opportunities for creativity so often dare one to be different. As a minor change, we increased the size of the section on the Gristmill staff from one to two pages. Actually I allowed this because I was in a state of shock at hearing that my order not to use staff members as models in the advertising section had been followed. A more carefully contemplated change was in the copy. In a recent poll of 1965 Gristmill buyers, only 14% said they read as much as half of the "say-nothing" copy. Therefore we have added, somewhat erratically, light humor and startling frankness at the expense of filler and moralizing in order to restore readibility to the yearbook.

In this spirit, I wish to handle the acknowledgments differently from the usual meaningless list. We owe far more to our unassuming adviser, Mr. George Starr, than to anyone else. Of course, he lost his composure at times, as when he saw us planning a picture of a presidential candidate passing some bribe money; and he disagreed with us at times, as when he censored a picture of a library card-burner. And yet the very reasons that have prevented him from being acknowledged in the past, his patience, his appearance as an unchanging rock of reliance, and his thorough knowledge of yearbooks ("Let's see," he'd say, "they tried that in the 1946 yearbook, and the 1953 one, and the 1311 one . . ."), are just the reasons why he has gained the total respect of this group of mixed-up teenagers.

THANK YOU,

Jim Anderson
